Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

Crane, Mikva see trouble for Ford

Kissinger on top after Ford shuffle

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year. "If we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced expectations of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Martenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice

Rocky's pullout from '76 race 'his idea': Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Up $12 to $15 per $10,000 valuation

Flood bonds OKd; taxes to rise

by KURT BAER

A $3.2 million dollar nonreferendum general obligation bond issue for flood-control work was approved unanimously Monday night by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The bond issue will add about $12 to $15 to the annual tax bill on a home with a $10,000 assessed valuation. The exact increase in the village tax rate will depend on the bond interest rate, which will be determined by bids later this year.

Three flood-control projects will be built in 1975-76 using the funds, and land will be bought for two other projects, including the 113-acre Lake Arlington planned east of Windsor Drive and south of the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way.

Trustee Frank Palmatier said the bond issue was precipitated by the need to start a $400,000 reconstruction project at the Hasbrook Park Pond this fall. There is not enough money in the Arlington Heights federal revenue sharing fund account — the major source for the flood-control program up to now — to pay for the Hasbrook project, she said.

IF THE HASBROOK work is not started this fall the park would have to be torn up during the prime summer recreation months, he said.

The bond issue also provides $1 million to grade a golf course on land owned by the Arlington Heights Park District at the Nike Base, Central and New Wilke roads. This work is expected to start this spring.

A third project to provide flood relief for the Hickory Meadows and Arlington Knolls neighborhoods is to build a new storm water retention reservoir north of the Evangelical Free Church between Douglas and Belmont avenues.

Land will be purchased for a storm-water basin to benefit the Ridge Park-Sherwood area using money from the bond issue.

The board also voted to commit another $175,000 of federal revenue sharing funds to pay for the Hasbrook reconstruction work until the bonds are issued, probably some time around January. Only $200,000 of the federal funds remains unspent.

PALMATIER SAID there is a "chance" that the village bonds can be sold at a mere 7 per cent interest rate, which would add 12 cents to the village tax rate.

Only one resident spoke on the non-referendum bond issue Monday night. Thomas McDonnell of the Surrey Ridge West Civic Assn. urged the board to approve the financing.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan noted that half the bond issue — $1 million for the golf course and $500,000 for Lake Arlington land — are contributions to park and recreation projects as well as flood control.

The $3.2 million is the first bond issue approved for the village's comprehensive flood-control program under village home-rule power. A $16.7 million bond issue to finance the entire program was defeated by just 67 votes in a May referendum.

'No Dist. 214 closures until 1980'

The closing of a high school may not take place in High School Dist. 214 until 1980.

In reviewing enrollment figures showing a steady decline in students through the 1983-84 school year, the Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday it will be 1980 before enrollment will drop enough to warrant the closing of a high school.

Several board members reported that rumors are circulating in the community that the board has already decided to close a school. Super. Edward Gilbert said the rumors are untrue.

He said the board is considering all possible solutions to the declining enrollment problem, and the board's "discussion is not based on a decision

Harms walks out over lounge quiz

Trustee Alice Harms walked out of the village board meeting in protest Monday night.

Mrs. Harms left during questions from fellow board members about her opposition to a striptease lounge recently opened on Rand Road north of Thomas Street in unincorporated Cook County.

"I am tired of being vilified at this board meeting," Mrs. Harms said noticeably near tears. "I am not doing this to benefit myself I am doing it for the citizens of Arlington Heights."

Mrs. Harms had been asked by Trustee August Bettman about a report she personally requested from Arlington Heights Police Det. Gene Deck on the lounge, "This and That." The report was given only to Mrs. Harms.

The board considered and then tabled a motion to ask County Liquor Contr. George Dunne to revoke or suspend the bar's liquor license because of "obscene, immoral and lewd activity," allegedly taking place there.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan said he thought the matter had not been thoroughly and properly investigated and he accused Mrs. Harms of seeking publicity. He said Mrs. Harms was attempting to try the fate of the lounge in the newspapers. Ryan said he did not consider requests that the police department report be supplied to other board members as unreasonable.

"It's just not the kind of thing I associate with Arlington Heights," Mrs. Harms said of "This and That." She said she raised the question of what to do about the lounge at a legal committee meeting last week.

The board studied school enrollment figures prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for Lake, Cook, DuPage, Kane, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana. The figures show high school enrollment reaches a peak in 1980, drops to a low in 1980 and rises again until the year 2000.

"This phenomenon of declining enrollment," said Gilbert, "is not continuing indefinitely," said he added the study shows there is a "10-year period where we can easily accommodate the enrollment of the district in less than eight schools."

New 'grass' law passes 1st hurdle

The proposed decriminalization of marijuana possession within the Village of Palatine passed its first hurdle Monday when village trustees directed Police Chief Jerry Bratcher to continue research on the subject and come back to the board with a proposed ordinance before the end of the year. Bratcher said that under the proposed ordinance the penalty for possession of 30 grams of marijuana, about four cigarettes, or less would be changed from a jail sentence to a mandatory fine ranging from $100 to $500. "It's more in line with the contemporary scene," he said. Bratcher said that of the 102 arrests for marijuana possession in Palatine last year, not one jail sentence was imposed. "If we fined $100 to $500 perhaps the parent would pay the fine, but I still feel it would be a better deterrent," he said.

Dist. 63 strike vote set

Teachers in East Maine Dist. 63 will hold a strike vote Wednesday after a stalemate in contract talks during a nine-hour negotiating session Saturday. The teachers' union board of directors voted Monday to recommend teachers vote to strike. The Saturday negotiating session was the first since teachers declared an impasse in salary talks in October and demanded mediation. A union official characterized continued negotiations as "an exercise in futility."

Dist. 59 unit study OK'd

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to open a study on forming a unit school district. Board members said there is a "definite interest" on the part of the board and the community to form a unit district with one board and one administration for both elementary and high schools. Elk Grove Township businessmen Monday also strongly supported a unit school district study. The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce polled its members to see if they would support the study, and only eight of the 168 voting were against the study. A unit district would remove the Dist. 59 area from High School Dist. 214. A petition circulated among association members states it would benefit residents and the business community for Dist. 59 to go to a unit system because local taxes and state aid would be used to educate only students in Elk Grove Township rather than have tax dollars paid into Dist. 214 which also serves Wheeling Township. A unit district would also give full representation on the school board, the petition states. Currently there is only one Dist. 214 board member from the Dist. 59 area.

School test scores falling

Standardized test scores for freshmen in High School Dist. 207 this year were the lowest reported in the district during the past 13 years. Students in the Maine Township schools were two years above the national norm in 1963 but have been going down every year, said Merlin Schultz, Dist. 207 administrator. A national test score of 12 is considered normal for an incoming freshman according to the Iowa Test of Educational Development testing service. Dist. 207 freshmen scored 13.7 this year, compared with a national average of 12.5 in 1963. Dist. 207 freshmen scored 16.4 compared with a national average of 11.7. Schultz said Dist. 207 is working with elementary school feeder districts to develop programs to improve the scores.

County revenue sags

'Special taxes' coming: Dunne

by ANNE SLAVICEK
Cook County taxpayers can look forward to new special taxes to augment sagging county revenue, County Board Pres. George Dunne said Monday.

Painting a gloomy picture for 1976 county revenues, Dunne predicted the county would use its home-rule powers to enact new taxes similar to this year's new liquor tax.

He also disclosed plans to increase fees charged for various county services — including a possible hike in the wheel tax paid by car owners who live in unincorporated areas.

DUNNE SAID, however, he would oppose an increase in property tax rates, and would not favor a county income tax. He said county officials were considering a county lottery as one possible source of revenue.

Dunne's predictions came after County Comptroller Thomas P. Beck released 1976 revenue estimates Monday. Beck's revenue estimates totaled $163 million for the county corporate fund next year. Dunne said current estimates of budget needs for county departments total $185 million without any pay raises for county employees. The 1975 county corporate budget totaled $149 million.

Dunne said "miraculous work will have to be done" to bring the 1976 revenues and expenditures into line. He said the outlook was "very, very bleak" for raises for any county employee.

Admitting the wage freeze "will not sit well with any of the employees," Dunne said he saw no alternative but to hold the line on wages.

HE SAID THE county recently began a program to cut costs — turning off half the electric lights in hallways of the county building, the county jail and the Audy Home.

Dunne was critical of the cost of the county court system. He said the County Board should have the power to raise court costs to cope with the criminal justice system which takes 71 per cent of all county revenues.

He also said he feared that a legal limit of 4 cents per $100 assessed valuation levy for election costs would not pay the full cost of county elections in the coming year.

Dunne blamed the 1970 Illinois Constitution for many of the county's financial woes. He said the constitution's framers "crucified us financially when they took away the commissions received in tax collections, the inheritance taxes and fees for the extension of taxes."

THE CONSTITUTION cut $20 million per year from county revenues, Dunne said. He said the state legislature will have to find a replacement for the personal property tax before the county is banned from collecting it in 1979.

The revenue expectations reported by Beck included $55,218,000 from property tax, $101,291,490 from other sources including fees and the new liquor tax. There will be a $7 million surplus from last year's revenues Beck said, to bring the total to $163,509,570.

County Comr. Jerome Huppert announced a public hearing at 10 a.m. Nov. 13 to consider county fee increases. The county hasn't raised fees for six years, Dunne said. Fees can only be raised enough to cover the actual cost of administering the services.

Among the fees which could be hiked in addition to the wheel tax are fees for recording deeds, dog licenses, for liquor licenses, for building permits and for business licenses.

Illinois Senate OKs horse-racing reform bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Senate Monday accepted Gov. Daniel Walker's changes in a major horseracing reform bill, including reinstatement of a provision prohibiting political contributions by racing interests.

The bill S37, sponsored by Sen. Philip Rock, D-Chicago, passed the General Assembly in the closing days of the spring session. Walker made the changes by amendatory veto on Sept. 11. The bill, approved in its amended form on a 46-1 roll call, now goes to the House for a vote.

Walker approved provisions of the bill that reduce the admission tax at race tracks from 40 cents to 5 cents per person, open up winter racing throughout the state for the first time and allow Sunday racing at tracks where the local community approves.

Another of Walker's changes approved by the Senate would prevent corporations with felony convictions from forming subsidiary companies to obtain racing dates.

WALKER ALSO CHANGED the bill to eliminate a proposed 10-cent-per-person local admission tax on racing fans which had been sought by Cicero officials; restore a requirement that the race tracks reimburse the state for track investigators; and delete provisions to limit the governor's power to remove a racing board member. The Illinois Racing Board, which opposed the original bill, said at the time of the veto that it would support the bill with the governor's changes.

Rock said the bill "will put Illinois in the forefront" in the nation in racing laws.

He said Walker's change prohibiting political contributions from racing associations was of "dubious constitutionality at best," but said he was willing to accept it.

Senate Republican leader William Harris of Pontiac said he is "personally somewhat troubled by this extreme utilization of the amendatory veto." But, he said, "There is so much good in this bill that I'll accept the governor's action."

Fighting breaks out near Sahara border

by United Press International

Bitter fighting broke out near the Spanish Sahara border Monday between Moroccan troops and Saharan guerrillas, Spanish military sources reported.

The sources said the fighting began when Moroccan troops tried to occupy a post evacuated by Spanish soldiers but already taken over by guerrillas of the Polisario Front, a militant pro-independence faction in the Spanish Sahara.

Morocco, meanwhile, sent envoys to Spain and Algeria in an effort to silence the rumblings of war over the desolate northwest African territory.

A Spanish government source said it might be too late. King Hassan II of Morocco has massed 350,000 civilians at the Sahara frontier and has vowed to lead a march to take over the territory.

A Moroccan government source said the marchers would set off Thursday on foot and will cover the 40 miles to the Saharan capital of El Aiun "in time for prayers on Friday," the Moslem holy day.

Both Spain and Algeria have indicated they will fight rather than let Morocco seize the phosphate-rich territory unilaterally.

The Spanish source said Hassan gave no sign of stopping the march and by now probably could not stop it even if he wanted to.

"Unfortunately it looks now as if there might be violence in the Sahara," the source said. "King Hassan seems bent on carrying out the march and we doubt whether he can stop it now."

"We will have to take action against an invasion of our territory," he said. "There is no difference between armed and unarmed invasion."

In the vast tent city that has sprung up 25 miles north of the Spanish Sahara frontier, the Moroccan marchers seemed more concerned about food supplies than political developments and the threat of war.

"We ran out of food in two days," said Abdallah Bennouna, 19, a literature student from Rabat. "I've been buying my own ever since." Many other volunteers were in the same fix.

King Hassan sent his prime minister, Ahmed Osman, to Madrid Monday and Minister of State Mohammed Bahini to Algiers. Both men were received coolly. No Spanish officials met Osman's plane in what appeared to be a deliberate snub.

In Algiers, Bahini conferred with President Houari Boumedienne and later said, "The problem is not insoluble. The most important thing is to reinstate brotherly relations between the two countries and restore our traditional friendship."

Algerian sources said Algeria was "militarily, politically, strategically and diplomatically prepared for any eventuality."

The Algerian foreign ministry warned against any "fait accompli" and said Algeria "could not ratify such an act, especially one that had taken place on its own frontiers."

Algeria strongly opposes any settlement of the Spanish Sahara crisis except the one proposed by Spain and endorsed by the United Nations: a self-determination vote.

Franco has surgery, condition 'grave'

GENERALISSIMO FRANCO

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco suffered a sudden relapse Monday and underwent two-hour emergency surgery to stop internal bleeding. A government source said he was sinking slowly.

The operation succeeded in repairing a burst artery, government aides said, but the doctors went on to remove a stomach ulcer. The operation ended shortly after midnight (5 p.m. CST).

Franco received 1½ gallons of blood during the operation. The first bulletin reporting the "sudden and large gastrointestinal hemorrhage" described Franco as critical. A later communiqué, prior to surgery, said he was "most grave."

"He is sinking slowly," a government source said.

Palace aides said the 82-year-old Spanish leader was moved to a hospital in his El Pardo palace complex and came through the operation, the first of his two-week crisis, in "most grave" condition.

Franco's successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, family and top military and government aides watched through a glass door partition as his team of surgeons made their frantic effort to save Franco.

The aides had said earlier that both the transfusions and surgery had been ruled out because Franco could survive the shock of neither.

Six hours after the "sudden and large gastro-intestinal hemorrhage" hit, the aides said the bleeding had been controlled, at least temporarily.

They said doctors had patched a burst artery and also removed an ulcer from Franco's stomach.

Franco's successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, his family, and top military and government aides rushed to the El Pardo palace at the first announcement of a setback at 4 p.m.

It was the third major crisis in the two-week fight for life of the man who has stricken Spain for 36 years. He was stricken with influenza Oct. 17 and suffered the first of three heart attacks Oct. 21.

Juan Carlos broke off a Spanish Sahara crisis meeting with Moroccan Prime Minister Ahmed Osman, and the national radio began solemn symphonic music.

Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro continued the discussions with Osman aimed at heading off a conflict.

The radio eventually returned to its normal programming.

Franco's palace chaplain, Monsignor Jose-Maria Bullart, was in attendance. He administered the Roman Catholic sacrament of the sick nine days ago and has celebrated Mass almost daily at his bedside.

There, surrounded by a growing number of doctors and the latest in medical technology, Franco has clung to life with the soldierly strength that made him, at the age of 33, Europe's youngest general since Napoleon.

Sources close to Juan Carlos, meantime, say he is planning to signal the beginning of post-Franco change immediately after he takes his oath in an attempt to mollify demands for reform while answering leftist critics who label him as a Franco puppet.

His inaugural speech, they said, will tell Spaniards in clear terms that he favors peaceful change through the constitution. They said his prime minister will probably be chosen from two contenders who favor Western-style democracy.

His first government, they said, will initiate change by setting up an advisory body of the nation's leading jurists to draft proposals for constitutional reform for a national referendum.

The sources said the prince might seek approval of monarchy at the same time as a sort of package deal democratic change with the monarchy, or neither.

The two key factors in the plan, the sources said, are the countries deeply entrenched pro-Franco conservatives and the army. His visit to Spanish Sahara, and his decisions so far in the crisis, appear to indicate he wants to do nothing that would cause the army loss of face in the northwest African territory.

Javits links default to Rocky decision

Panel votes $7 billion N.Y. loan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Banking Committee voted 23-16 Monday to make $7 billion in federally guaranteed loans available to New York City. An opponent conceded the bill had a 50-50 chance of passing.

Meantime, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., told a news conference he believed the issue over whether the federal government should seek to avert New York City's default may have been a catalyst in Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's decision to leave office when his term ends in 1977.

Rockefeller and Ford have not agreed on the New York issue. Javits said Rockefeller's surprise decision may be "helpful" because of its influence on Ford. "Maybe he needs a shaking," Javits said.

Ford has proposed that instead of advancing billions to permit New York City to avert default on its debts, the government should enact legislation making possible an "orderly" transition into bankruptcy under which a federal court would assume financial control of the city.

House Democrats planned to attach Ford's proposal to their own — giving the administration discretionary authority to provide up to $7 billion in federally guaranteed loans either before or after default occurs.

Ford, asked in a television interview taped in Jacksonville, Fla., Sunday if he would accept such a bill, said: "If we are faced with the combination of something that is bad and something that is good, I will take a look at it. But the odds are, because I feel so strongly the other is not a right answer, that I would not look with favor on it."

At a later point Ford was asked if he could accept any bill "to bail out New York," and he replied, "None, other than the one I recommended because I think that is the only fundamental solution."

When a reporter reminded Ford that many of New York's eight million citizens are voters and might express their resentment in the 1976 presidential election, he said: "I think we have to — in this case it is so fundamental — look beyond any political consequences. This is a very fundamental issue, and I am trying to do what is right for the people of New York City, for whom I have nothing but great sympathy and compassion."

Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, said there was a 50-50 chance the loan guarantee would be approved by the House. And Rep. Thomas Ludlow Ashley, D-Ohio, said he believed Ford ultimately might sign the bill because the authority to make guaranteed loans was "discretionary, not mandatory."

Twenty-one Democrats and two Republicans voted for the bill. Eleven Republicans and five Democrats opposed it.

Under the bill the federal government could guarantee repayment of loans made either to avert default or to help the city recover from it. The decision would be made by a five-member board chaired by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon. Without federal aid, New York officials expect to be unable to repay debts coming due later this month.

Democratic strategy is to attach to the bill a proposal Ford made last week to permit an "orderly" bankruptcy in New York City, where a federal court would then assume financial control of the city.

Simon reports $2 bill to reappear

• Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the $2 bill, discontinued nine years ago, will reappear next spring with a Bicentennial look. He said 225 million bills will be issued on Thomas Jefferson's birthday, April 13. Another 400 million will be released some time before the nation's 200th birthday July 4.

• Singer Eddie Fisher, 47, took his fourth walk down the aisle to marry a 21-year-old former beauty queen. Fisher and Terry Richardson, Miss Louisiana in the 1973 Miss World Contest, were married Oct. 29 in Baja California. The couple will leave Nov. 11 for Australia where Fisher will be on tour. This is Miss Richardson's first marriage. Fisher has been married to Debbie Reynolds, Elizabeth Taylor and Connie Stevens.

• Frank Sinatra will present the Scopus Award to pianist Arthur Schnabel Wednesday for his work with the Hebrew University. The first Scopus Award was presented in 1968 by former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir to builder-philanthropist Louis H. Boyar.

• Astronaut Donald Slayton spent the weekend in Sparta, Wis. where he grew up. Slayton predicted man would land on Mars by the end of the century. He added, however, "It probably won't be me."

CIA assassination plot report approved

The Senate Intelligence committee Monday unanimously approved a report on CIA assassination plots and sent it for secret study by the full Senate before it is made public. In a last-minute letter, President Ford urged the report not be made public. But Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, committee chairman, said he hoped the report would be released by Thanksgiving.

Electrical trouble threatens Viking 2

Electrical trouble has developed in one of two Viking spacecraft heading toward landings on Mars next summer in the first attempt to search for life on another planet, the space agency reported Monday. The problem involves the Viking 2 spacecraft and must be resolved to enable the spacecraft to follow Viking 1 to a gentle landing on the Martian surface, the prime objective of the $1 billion project.

200 jurors ready for Fromme trial

Chief U. S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride said Monday 200 prospective jurors will be called for the trial of Lynette Fromme, the Manson cultist accused of attempting to murder President Ford. The trial starts Tuesday with questioning of the first of two panels of 50 persons each. Two more panels will be called Wednesday.

OPEC opens oil price discussions

Economic experts of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Monday opened discussions in Vienna on oil price premiums that could lead to minor reductions in crude oil prices. OPEC sources said the 13-member organization's Economic Commission discussed the possibility of cutting the premiums that are based on quality, sulphur content and the oil producing country's closeness to its market.

Army troops exchange fire in Dacca

Young army troops exchanged gunfire in Dacca Monday, bringing life in the Bangladesh capital to a standstill, diplomatic sources said. No casualty figures were available. Japanese sources said the shooting broke out in an army barracks early Monday and army troops later patrolled Dacca streets halting all traffic except official and diplomatic vehicles.

IRS auto bomb rocks London

A bomb blew up under a car parked in London's Connaught Square Monday, hurling it upside down with its owner Atty. Richard Charney trapped in the wreckage, hanging by his seatbelt. Charney and two other persons were injured and police said it was "an act of God" that nobody was killed. It was the 11th Irish Republican Army bomb to explode in London in two months.

Helping others is his mission

by LINDA PUNCH

The fate of millions of people overseas rests on the shoulders of the Rev. James Martin of Arlington Heights. Rev. Martin, pastor of the first Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, was one of two ministers selected to tour the world mission stations of the United Presbyterian Church. His job was to report on the current state of the missions and to make recommendations for future funding of the program.

"For the past few years, there's been talk about a moratorium on sending people overseas so each country could develop its own resources. Now, I think there's going to be a switch," he said. The Rev. Martin's trip took him to missions in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Singapore, Bangkok and Kenya. He is convinced the church must increase support of the missions rather than cut back. "IN SOUTHERN INDIA, we closed a hospital that ministered to a million people because we couldn't afford a doctor. It only would have cost $3,600 a year. It's a tragic thing to see that kind of withdrawal," the Rev. Martin said. The Rev. Martin said the number of missionaries has been cut back from 1,400 to 500 in the past 10 years because of the lack of money. "There are people lining up to go overseas but the church doesn't have the funds," he said. Mrs. Martin, who accompanied her husband on the trip, said lack of money also causes hardship for families of missionaries.

"THE MISSIONARIES are responsible for educating their own children through the second grade. After that, they often have to send them away to a boarding school. This is very much of a hardship on the family," she said. The Rev. Martin said the church loses many missionaries when children reach college age. "One of our best interpreters must come back to the United States after 27 years in order to support his children in college. It's tragic to lose that kind of expertise, but they haven't enough money to continue," he said. The interest in Christianity continues to grow in the Southeast Asian countries despite recent waves of anti-Americanism, the Rev. Martin said. He cites South Korea, where Pres. Park Chung Hee has cracked down on clergy, as an example. "While we were in Korea, we were kept under constant surveillance by the Korean CIA. Our hotel room was bugged and our papers searched every time we went out. When we met with clergy to be briefed on the condition of the Korean Church we had to meet in a private home because the missionaries' office was bugged," he said.

DESPITE THE ACTIONS of the Korean government, the Rev. Martin terms the Korean church "the most vital in the world." He said the Koreans have established a goal of 300 new churches a year for the next decade, "and they've just about made it for this year."

The Rev. Martin said he also was pleased with the cooperation among overseas churches. He said in many countries there are no Protestant or Catholic churches, only the Church of Christ. "We work ecumenically overseas in ways we never dream of here," he said.

Businessmen support unit district in Chamber survey

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township businessmen overwhelmingly support a unit school district study for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area.

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce polled its members to see if they would support formation of a unit district. The results of the poll were released Monday with 160 members voting for and eight against a unit district. About 25 per cent of the association's members answered the petition.

A unit school district would have one administration and school board governing elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten through eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 attendance area.

Garage group plans survey

The Downtown Garage Committee will survey merchants and businessmen in the central business district on the need for a parking garage.

Earl Johnson, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the committee, said the surveys should "be in the mail before the end of the week."

"It's primarily a series of questions looking for the opinion of the people downtown as to the need of a parking garage and how they would like to see it operated," he said.

Johnson said businessmen will be asked to give information on how they handle employee parking. The survey also asks for opinions on how to finance the garage.

Members of the Downtown Garage Committee have discussed building a garage south of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks. Village owned land near the Dunton Court Shopping Center between Vail and Dunton avenues has been suggested as a site.

The committee also has discussed several means of financing the garage, including the formation of a special taxing district in the downtown area.

Army releases more land at Nike base for parks

by KURT BAER

The U.S. Army will surrender 26 more acres at the Arlington Heights Nike Base, Central and New Wilke roads, to the Arlington Heights Park District.

The additional land will increase the park district's holdings at the site by 40 per cent, and may allow the expansion of a nine-hole village golf course planned on the property.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., received word Monday of the Army's decision to declare 26 acres surplus to its need.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT was interpreted as a compromise to demands that the Army reevaluate its decision of a year ago to hold on to 73 acres at the Nike Base for a reserve training center.

The park district already controls 65 acres of former military property in two separate parcels of 52 and 13 acres.

Information on the location of the 26 additional acres was not immediately available. If the acreage joins the two parcels already owned by the park district, it would permit the addition of more golf course holes.

Grading for the golf course could begin next spring if the village board approves financing for $3.2 million worth of flood control improvements, including the Nike Base work.

Arlington Heights Trustee Frank Palmatier has proposed the issuance of nonreferendum, general obligation bonds to pay for the construction.

THE GOLF COURSE is designed to store storm water after heavy rains and prevent flooding in the neighboring Surrey Ridge and Surrey Ridge West subdivisions.

The 26 acres declared excess by the Army Monday, still must pass through the General Services Administration, a U.S. government clearing house, before the park district can take title to the property.

But spokesmen for Crane and Stevenson said Monday they are unaware of any other claim to the property, and do not expect unreasonable delays in getting the land transferred to the park district.

The Army's decision caps a 17-month-long controversy that started in June 1974, when the Army rejected requests that it give up all of the 73 acres it retained at the base. Park officials next proposed a compromise that would have left the Army with 31 acres.

The compromise plan also was rejected in October 1974. But Army officials promised to re-evaluate their land needs in a year. The re-evaluation and continued pressure from local legislators and citizens apparently lead to the decision to give up 26 more acres.

TOM McDONNELL, a spokesman for the Citizens Committee for Utilization of the Nike Base, said Monday the Army's announcement will probably mark an end to residents' agitation over the base.

"I don't think we can press for any more. They have recognized our needs and we recognize theirs," McDonnell said.

"Speaking for the committee, we are really overjoyed. We had all the confidence that we were going to win. It only made good sense," he added.

RESIDENTS PLANNED to picket the Central Road entrance to the Nike Base if their request for more land was turned down for a second time.

Spokesmen for Crane and Stevenson said they were satisfied with the Army's decision.

Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District director, said location of the 26 acres is crucial.

"We're happy about the decision, but we're waiting to find out if the 26 acres is in an area where we can use it," he said.

Dist. 59 approves study of unit district plan

A resolution to reopen the study of a unit school district for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 was unanimously approved by the Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night.

Board member Emil Bahnmaier proposed that a unit district study committee drawn from all members of the community be reestablished. A study on the unit district was done in 1973, but it was decided not to implement the concept.

A unit district would have one administration and board of education governing the elementary and high school. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten to eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

BAHNMAIER SAID there was "definite interest" in the unit district on the part of the community and that the board would reinitiate its study if it did not reopen the study.

"I think the entire study should be reviewed," he said. "The financial picture has changed quite a bit as has the population of the district. The educational impact should also be reviewed."

District resident Joseph Stecker, Mount Prospect, suggested the committee should determine how a unit district would be affected if Dist. 59 had to close some school due to lack of enrollment. Board Pres. Judith Zanca said it was "premature" to consider closing schools. She said a school's enrollment would have to drop to less than 150 students to consider closing it. The smallest school enrollment in the district is about 240.

BAHNMAIER SAID High School Dist. 214, which will likely close one or two high schools in the next 10 years, will probably oppose the unit district because part of its tax base would be removed.

He said, however, that the economic impact on Dist. 214 would not be as severe as in 1973 now that the state formula used to figure school aid, is in effect.

Board member Erwin Poklacki urged the board to approve the establishment of the committee so "the citizenry can study the unit district independently and come to their own conclusions."

Resident arrested for knifing youth

An 18-year-old Arlington Heights man was arrested Sunday for allegedly cutting a local youth on the shoulder with a knife in the parking lot of South Junior High School.

Charged with aggravated battery was Michael Todd, 507 S. Waterman Ave.

A 16-year-old Arlington Heights youth told police late Saturday he was knocked around by a man who threatened him with a broken pop bottle and cut him with a knife, causing a slight injury.

Todd posted $2,000 bond.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

A spaghetti dinner will be served at MacArthur Junior High School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights, Thursday from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

The dinner will include spaghetti with meat sauce, salad, garlic bread, dessert and a beverage. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12 years old and may be purchased from any band student. Entertainment will be provided by the MacArthur School jazz band.

The dinner is sponsored by the Prospect Heights Band Boosters and the MacArthur choral group. Proceeds will be used to purchase cabinets for band instruments.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

Chief Walks-With-The-Wind often billed as "Illinois' Own Chief," will be at Riley School, 1209 Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, Thursday. History, legend, tribal dances and ceremonies are included in the chief's Indian heritage program. The chief is a leader of the Winnebago tribe. The program is sponsored by Urban Gateways.

Five honey locust trees were recently planted on the grounds at Riley School, Arlington Heights, as a Bicentennial project to beautify the area.

Cooperating in the project were the Riley School PTA, Northgate Civic Assn., Boy Scout Troop 119, Cub Pack 119, Girl Scout Troops 474, 689 and 633, Brownie Troops 633 and 701, and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School Dist. 21.

High School Dist. 211

The Conant High School Cougar Marching Band will present its second indoor concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates. The band, rifles, and flags groups will perform the music and routines presented at half-time shows and competitions earlier this fall. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Orders are being taken for Texas ruby red grapefruit and oranges by the Conant Band Parents Club of Conant High School, Hoffman Estates. Orders must be in before Nov. 11 and will be ready for delivery Dec. 16. The fruit is selling for $5 per case and orders may be placed with any band member or by calling 885-9029. Proceeds from the fund-raising project will be used for future band trips.

asked whether Harper College, with its expanding enrollment, would be interested in using Dist. 214's facilities.

Dist. 214 administrators questioned whether the college could use a Dist. 214 campus since parking space is limited. The college requires a large amount of parking since most of its students commute by car.

Terry Schott of Arlington Heights asked the board if it "deliberately withheld" its enrollment report until after voters approved a second campus for Harper College in a referendum Sept. 27. "Didn't you feel it was your place to contact Harper" about possible use of a Dist. 214 school as a second campus? Mrs. Schott asked.

"That would have been a little presumptuous on our part," said Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko. Gilbert said there was no connection between the enrollment report and the referendum. "It would be hard for me to conceive that that would have changed their course of action," he said.

Fulle's conviction recalls trials of Barrett, Kerner

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
A news analysis

County Comr. Floyd Fulle's charges last week will resurrect the courtroom ghosts of former County Clerk Edward Barrett and former Gov. Otto Kerner.

Fulle — the Cook County Republican Party chairman, Maine Township GOP committeeman and a County Board member — apparently will resign from the positions.

A U.S. District Court jury ended Fulle's two-week trial Friday by voting conviction on seven counts of extortion, tax fraud and perjury. The charges included payoffs by Northwest suburban builders to Fulle of $89,000 to influence county apartment zoning.

Within hours, speculation about Fulle successors began.

FULLE IS EXPECTED to release an "extensive" statement about the trial and verdict by Wednesday. The statement will avoid a promised press conference where a barrage of questions about resignation would be likely.

Fulle offered no comment as he hurried from the nearly deserted Dirksen Federal Building late Friday. A defense attorney, William R. Jacobs, talked of a "press conference" to discuss the courtroom events.

Talk of resignation from the County Board or county political post is "silly," Jacobs said Monday. "It's silly to suggest he do things until he talks to the people involved."

Kerner's "race track" stock scandal conviction could become a brick in a wall against surrender of the public positions. Although Kerner was sentenced April 19, 1973 to serve a three-year prison sentence on charges of tax evasion, perjury, mail fraud and conspiracy, he resigned a federal judgeship only after appeals ended in July, 1974.

Fulle is months from beginning the appeals process that could end in the U.S. Supreme Court.

FULLE'S ATTORNEYS must file post-trial motions by Friday but may request a deadline extension. The motions began groundwork for appeals.

U.S. District Court Judge Bernard M. Decker, after hearing argument about the motions, may accept the jury verdict, order a new trial or reject some jury findings. Decker has scheduled a hearing and sentencing Dec. 9.

Edward Barrett was convicted March 7, 1973 of accepting $180,000 in bribes from a voting machine manufacturer. His case provides a County Board precedent for removing Fulle as a commissioner.

Ironically, Fulle forced Barrett's replacement by requesting a special County Board meeting within hours of the former county clerk's conviction.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said March 7, 1973. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

THE GO-AHEAD for Barrett's removal in 1973 came from Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board officially to declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett," Gardner's opinion said.

The same opinion was distributed to county board members Monday.

But, Gardner said Monday the "language" of the law which bars persons convicted of "infamous crime" from public office is "tricky." "When is a person convicted?" Gardner asked.

Although the jury voted Friday, the judge will not pronounce the verdict until Dec. 9.

Fulle may attempt to follow Kerner's path by taking a leave of absence from the county board until appeals end.

THE FUTURE OF Fulle's Republican Party posts also are not clear.

Fulle was pressured into relinquishing control of the county GOP organization a month after his indictment. "After my personal matter has been resolved and wiped from the books, I shall return to active participation," he said March 6.

The county GOP structure provides for appointment of a successor to a chairman who resigns or dies. Cries for Fulle's resignation are expected to increase as the 1976 election nears.

Wheeling Township GOP committeeman Fred Yonkers suggested Fulle's leave of absence a week after the Feb. 13 indictment. Yonkers said Monday, "It is incomprehensible that he (Fulle) would not resign immediately."

If Fulle resists, "I think the executive committee should take the necessary steps to remove him," Yonkers said. Fulle's term ends in March 1976.

SOME COUNTY commissioners suggested Monday that the GOP organization determine Fulle's successor before a county board replacement is considered. "This could block accusations that the county board seat was traded off," a county official said.

The County Board did not discuss the matter at a meeting Monday.

The five remaining suburban board members would appoint a Fulle successor. GOP committeemen pick the party's county chairman.

Comr. Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect, who also is Elk Grove Township committeeman, said Fulle will be forced to vacate the County Board post after sentencing. The remaining board members will "examine all possible candidates," he said. "Geography will be a consideration, but not an overriding one," he said.

94 compete in pageant

24 Junior Miss finalists named

Twenty-four Northwest suburban high school co-eds were named Monday to compete as finalists in the 1975-76 Paddock Publications Junior Miss Pageant.

A total of 94 seniors attending high schools within The Herald circulation area entered the pageant. The finalists were selected after personal interviews Sunday by a panel of 12 judges.

Two Paddock Junior Misses will be crowned at the Nov. 23 pageant when $1,700 in scholarship money will be awarded.

ARLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL seniors chosen as finalists are Diane Baron, Lynette Burmeister, Donna Kay Cook, Laura Lynne Kirk and Elaine Moy, all of Arlington Heights.

Finalists from Forest View High School include Susan Cavanaugh, Des Plaines; Terri-Sue Cox, Arlington Heights; Sharon Curtis, Des Plaines; and Margaret Kelly and Mary Mazzenga, both of Mount Prospect.

From Wheeling High School are Mary Christine Meyer and Debbie Anne Nebel, both of Wheeling; and Susan Wacholz, Prospect Heights.

Elk Grove High School finalists are

Karen Anne Leksander and Laurie Roth, both of Elk Grove Village.

NAMED AS FINALISTS from Fremd High School are Carla Lombardo and Mary R. Miller, both of Palatine.

Veronica Beth Pionke, Arlington Heights, and Nancy Weinberg, Mount Prospect, were chosen as finalists from John Hersey High School, Arlington Heights.

Other finalists include Laura Bailie, Arlington Heights, a student at Buffalo Grove High School; Kate Rausch, Hoffman Estates, a senior at Hoffman Estates High School; Julia Marie Claus, Des Plaines, from Maine Township High School West; Lynette (Lindy) Lang, Mount Prospect, a Prospect High School student; and Deborah Marie Himsel, Rolling Meadows, a student at Rolling Meadows High School.

Girls eligible to enter the locally sponsored contest must have a B average or better. At the pageant, finalists will be judged on the criteria of poise, physical fitness and talent. The local competition has produced five state titleholders in the past 10 years.

THE TWO JUNIOR misses selected each will receive a scholarship of $500 and a chance to compete in the state pageant in late December in Park Ridge. Runner-up and special recognition scholarships also will be awarded.

The pageant is also affiliated with America's Junior Miss Pageant planned in Mobile, Ala., in May, in which winners from the 50 states will compete.

Sponsors of this year's pageant are Lattot Motor Sales and First Arlington National Bank, Arlington Heights.

Sponsors include Mount Prospect State Bank, The Crawford, Rolling Meadows, and Beeline Fashions, Inc., Bensenville.

Scholarship fund donors include First National Bank of Mount Prospect, Person and Robbin Jewelers and Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, Arlington Heights.

The pageant, which begins at 7 p.m. at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates, is open to the public free of charge.

Burnt-orange buses in suburbs?

More than 1,200 commuters chose the color burnt orange to be painted on all suburban buses in the metropolitan Chicago area in a survey taken by the Regional Transportation Authority.

Three persons, from Oak Lawn, Northbrook and Chicago won a year's free transportation on the Rock Island Line, the Milwaukee Road and the Chicago Transit Authority as a result of a special drawing.

Nearly 4,000 persons responded to the question of which color suburban buses should be painted. Burnt orange received 1,246 vote, sky blue 993, dark green 580 and wine red 467.

According to the RTA, the vote will be considered, but not necessarily followed. A final decision will be made soon

U.S. upping the ante in the Middle East?

Americans have been jolted by the revelation that their secretary of state has half-promised to supply Israel with a medium-range missile, the Pershing, that is deployed by the United States solely as a nuclear weapon carrier. A half-promise may not be worth a wholehearted row; all Henry Kissinger has pledged his government to do (according to the leaked text of a secret addendum to the "memorandum of understanding") is to join Israel in a "study of high technology and sophisticated items, including the Pershing ground-to-ground missiles with conventional warheads, with the view to giving a positive response."

What, Americans and others are asking, does this classic example of Kissinger-style ambiguity actually mean?

Which Pershing, for instance, were Kissinger and the Israelis talking about — if, that is, they were talking about the same one? The production line of the current model, Pershing-1a, closed in June. The only way to get the missile to Israel before 1980 would be to take it out of the American army's own supplies (which neither the Defense Secretary, James Schlesinger, nor Congress would condone) or face the inordinate expense of restarting, and converting, the program to produce Israel's special non-nuclear variety.

Oh no, the Israelis now privately argue: they are just trying to pin America down on their future defense needs by making a bid for Pershing-2, the model that will become available in about five years' time.

Maybe. Or maybe Israel switched its sights to the later model after the fuss blew up. The American Defense Department's angry reaction to the leaked report (and who leaked it?) suggests, at the very least, that the issue was not made clear. Schlesinger has publicly fudged the extent to which the Pentagon was left out of things, but it seems that the Defense men did not know that the Pershing was going to figure in Kissinger's final intensive bargaining to get Israel's signature to the Sinai deal, let alone that he was going to commit his government to a "positive response."

WHEN ISRAEL began asking for the missile a year ago, the Defense Department's response, within the American administration, was decidedly negative; the Pentagon has never made any bones about the fact that it regards the Pershing as a vehicle for the delivery of nuclear warheads and that it has no conventional role. It is true that Pershing-2, because of its greater accuracy, is less completely unsuitable for conventional use than the current model. It is also true that it would be less unrealistic to build in special non-nuclear modifications, and a whole new warhead, for a system still in the planning stage than to monkey about with a program that has already reached its end.

But these qualifications amount to no more than saying that supplying Israel with Pershing-2 might be a less bad idea than supplying it with Pershing-1a. It would still be a bad idea.

Israel could, if it so decided, produce and explode a nuclear weapon: that is no longer seriously questioned. And it does not need the Pershing to carry the weapon: an airplane would do. But for Israel to ask for, and maybe get, the Pershing adds a dangerous degree of credibility to the fear that one day one Israeli government could make this decision. Successive Israeli governments have sworn that Israel will not be the first Middle Eastern state to fire a nuclear weapon; the present government has specified that it would not use the Pershing for this purpose — although in terms that implied that, if it wished, it had the ability to do so.

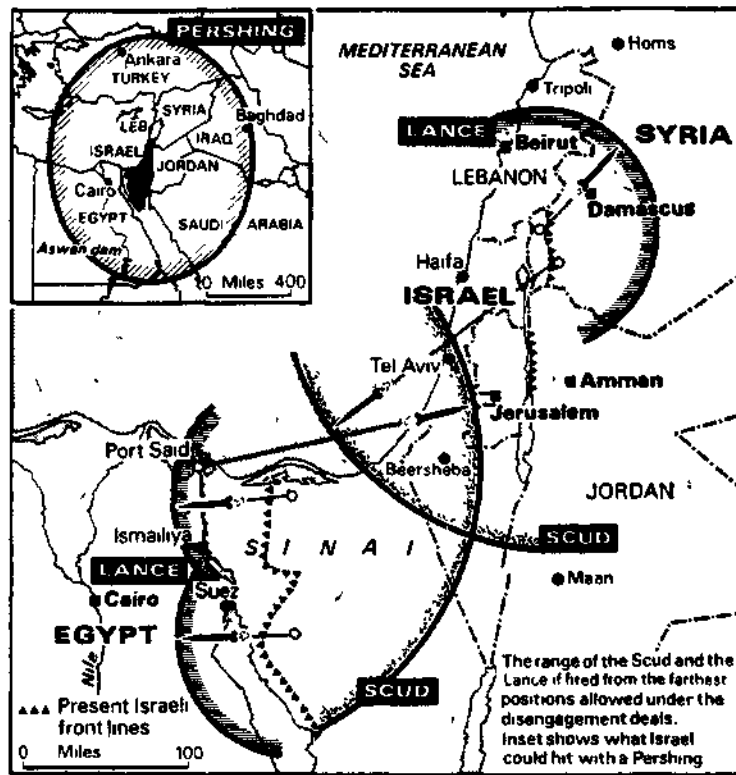

An elaborate and costly program could be devised to make Israel's Pershing and its warhead non-nuclear. But the Arabs would not believe that a reconversion back to the standard model was beyond Israel's technological abilities. Nor, one suspects, would the Israelis want the Arabs to believe otherwise. The lurking threat — even subsumed into an Israeli-American study committee — of an Israeli nuclear deterrent could be argued to serve Israel well. A deterrent, after all, deters.

BUT, AS SCHLESINGER has said, it is not American policy to help Israel to "a position in which it over-awe its neighbors." If the threat looms so large and so long as a Pershing the Arabs, or some of them, are going to search hell and high water for an answer in kind.

The knowledge that the Pershing could introduce a whole new scale of weapon-hunting into the world's most explosive area, plus the discomfort of feeling that strange things were being plotted behind their backs, have stopped American Congressmen in their tracks. Senators who had been prepared to authorize the stationing of American technicians in Sinai — and Israel has now made this authorization a precondition for its signing the detailed Israeli-Egyptian agreement that it initiated recently — are now holding back while they demand to know just what has been promised, when and to whom, for Kissinger's Sinai triumph.

The way we see it

Reason needed in negotiations

We are hopeful that the unfortunate teachers' strike in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will not be a pattern for other local school districts, particularly Des Plaines Dist. 62 which appears to be heading in the same direction.

Last week the teachers in Dist. 62 rejected what the board termed its "final offer." Although there had been some strike talk from teachers prior to the vote, the union followed the procedure set forth in the contract by declaring that negotiations were at an impasse and calling for mediation that is not binding on either side.

Board members responded by saying while they will honor the process of mediation and cooperate with a third party, they will not honor the mediator's recommendation or "budge any higher" from their offer.

The effect of contract stalemates and the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teachers strike are still fresh in the minds of many Northwest suburbanites. We believe the Dist. 62 board, like the Dist. 54 board, already is beginning to lock itself into a potentially destructive situation by taking such a narrow stand and that teachers may strike if the board does not follow contract provisions.

As their districts settle their contracts each year it becomes increasingly obvious that statements from either side such as "final offer" fall by the wayside when a settlement is reached.

Dist. 54 is a perfect example of a situation where a final offer was handed down by both sides and the settlement wound up as a compromise on the part of both.

Mediation allows that compromise to take place.

The Dist. 62 board approved a teachers' contract last year which includes the impasse and mediation procedures. It is reasonable for teachers and the public to expect the board and the teachers to keep an open mind while mediation is in progress rather than rejecting recommendations before they are made.

offered through the American Red Cross. The program ensures all village residents an unlimited blood supply if 4 per cent of the local population donates. The North Suburban Blood Center has a similar program.

Both programs offer protection to residents of our communities and provide oftentimes much needed blood in emergency situations.

We urge residents to support the program and offer a pint of blood when blood drawings are announced in your communities.

It is a good insurance policy for all of us.

'Sex education programs failed'

I read the report that there is an epidemic of teen-age pregnancies. The Planned Parenthood people are concerned. They want to get to these young girls and give them help so that a girl can say "No," to a boy "if she wants to."

It won't work. There is a fatal flaw in their thinking, and it is seen in that phrase, "If she wants to." There is no intention of communicating right and wrong and giving a real moral basis of conduct. She is only going to be told how to say "No," and if she wants to say "Yes," how to avoid pregnancy. What do you think she'll choose?

BY THE WAY, why aren't we reading an article that says, "Teenage pregnancies eliminated!"? It was the problem of teen-age and pre-teen pregnancies that the sex education programs were supposed to eliminate. There were many battles fought in the late 60s to keep these programs out of the schools, but when the smoke had cleared, the programs were in, in many classes from kindergarten on. Now the Planned Parenthood people, who push the same programs, say we need to teach more. Why won't they admit they have failed?

Why have the sex education pro-

letters to the editor grams failed to stem this tide of teen and pre-teen pregnancies? There are three basic reasons. 1) They are taught without a moral base. Absolute principles of right and wrong are taboo. 2) They violate a principle of education. Information that is learned will be put into practice. Sex education advocates say, "Learn, but don't do." 3) They violate a principal of sex. Sex information does not satisfy sexual curiosity. It arouses it.

How then should we teach sex education? The answer is simple. Read the Bible together regularly as a family. You will discover that it covers all the topics. If you keep communication open, children will ask the proper questions when they are ready. You will be able to give the answers within a moral framework, and on the basis of a family structure.

Two 'dangerous' traffic locations cited

I have been following with great interest and concern the recent publicity regarding the dangerous traffic situation existing in the vicinity of Hoffman High School and Rte. 72. I would like to take this opportunity to comment on two equally dangerous locations near Schaumburg High School and Schaumburg Road, namely its intersection with Braintree and Salem Drives. These are heavily traveled north-south streets which exit onto Schaumburg Road. They provide the most direct access from the Sheffield Park area on the north and Weathersfield on the south. It is extremely difficult to enter Schaumburg Road at any time of the day or early evening. The usual heavy traffic flow which normally exists on Schaumburg Road has been increased due to the closing of Golf Road for repairs. This coupled with the added traffic when the high school is in session and the additional congestion the new police facility directly to the east of the school will create when completed will contribute to a real mess.

On April 12, as a representative of the Sheffield Park Homeowners Assn., I requested at a "Coffee-with-Council" that four-way stop signs be placed at either of those intersections.

Since Schaumburg Road is a county highway, an intersection control survey has to be made before such signs can be posted by the county. A formal request was made shortly after this by the Schaumburg Police Department, citing the abnormally high incidence of traffic accidents occurring at these intersections.

FREQUENT INQUIRIES in the interim have revealed no action on the part of the county. I do know that just last week the village has again requested action on a traffic survey.

In conclusion, I believe that six months is more than a reasonable length of time for the county to survey these intersections. Does it require a traffic fatality to initiate more response? I certainly hope not.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 4, the 308th day of 1975 with 57 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio. American humorist Will Rogers was born Nov. 4, 1879. This is American newscaster Walter Cronkite's 59th birthday.

On this day in history:

• In 1842, Abraham Lincoln, 16th president of the United States, married Mary Todd in Springfield, Ill.

• In 1931, the League of Nations cited Japan for willful aggression in Manchuria.

• In 1952, Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower was elected President, ending 20 years of Democratic administrations. He defeated Aldous Stevenson.

• In 1961, the U.S. Army accepted the resignation of Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker, previously rebuked for alleged attempts to indoctrinate his troops in Germany with right-wing ideologies.

A thought for the day: Greek writer Sophocles said, "Though a man may be wise, it is no shame for him to live and learn."

Bad boy!

How would you react in a rape situation?

by BARBARA LADD

The evening had gone quite calmly before the subject of rape was brought up.

About 30 women informally sprawled on the floor or lounged in chairs listening to Dr. Kay Russell speak on various issues of female sexuality at Forest Hospital one evening last week.

After the first few tentative questions and comments from the women, an easy-going discussion evolved.

Indeed, the evening was going smoothly, the women — mostly young or middle-aged — appeared comfortable. "Now I have a few things I'd like to say about rape," said Dr. Russell, a psychotherapist specializing in sexual therapy.

The room, previously buzzing with conversation, silenced.

"IN THE THREE-WEEK war in Biafra, more than 200,000 women reported rapes — committed by U.N. soldiers entering villages," she said, pausing.

There was silence. "In Vietnam our soldiers invaded villages and raped the women. Eight and 10-year-old girls were raped, stickers were left on their bodies naming the company number," she said.

Silence.

"These were our men," Dr. Russell quietly stressed.

Silence. Most of the women in the room were looking at the floor.

"In times of war, rape is the first thing soldiers do when entering towns and villages. They are using women to get back at the men. In many instances and in many cultures, raped women are never taken back by their husbands," she said.

"BUT IN THE U.S. women are fairly well protected," she said. "We are not at war."

"Still, it's very frightening (if we want to) not to be able to protect ourselves. It's important for you to think about what you would do in a rape situation," she said.

The room was still silent. Then a slim, dark-haired woman spoke up.

She told of a night two years ago when she was awakened from her sleep and attacked.

Sitting next to her, a blond woman, a researcher in sexual patterns, said, "Statistics show half of us in this room will eventually be raped."

DISCUSSION BEGAN to pick up. One woman told of the rape of a friend. "That was three years ago," she said. "She's still psychologically dealing with it now."

Dr. Russell again stressed how important it is to think now about what to do in a rape situation. "If a rapist has a weapon it's important to have your wits about you."

"It has to be a judgment call, but if I was being raped and the guy had a knife or gun, it's my feeling that he intends to use it. In that situation I would fight him. I don't want to die."

"IF HE DIDN'T have a weapon, my feeling is that he just wants sex. If I fight him he might panic and hurt me. I would, in that case, probably submit."

The blond researcher disagreed. "The cost psychologically is so great if you submit. Years later you'll look back and wish you had fought ... I really wish I had fought ..."

"But my choice first is to live," argued Dr. Russell. "I can deal psychologically with it later."

The blond shook her head.

THEN DR. RUSSELL pointed out that regardless of forethought, reacting in a rape still ends up being a judgment call. She mentioned the standard list of procedures to follow after a rape — report it, go immediately to a doctor to get evidence, call a Rape Crisis Center or a good, sympathetic friend so the trauma isn't experienced alone.

The topic then changed. Jokes, questions and comments once again filled the room. About an hour later the meeting ended.

As two middle-aged women left through the side door of the hospital, they paused. One of them said, "Next time I'm going to park closer."

It looked awfully dark outside ...

'Coordinate anti-rape plan'

WASHINGTON — The government has proposed guidelines to help authorities get more rape convictions and to reduce the humiliations suffered by many victims during investigations and trials.

The Center for Women Policy Studies said its government-financed survey showed police often are not equipped to investigate rape cases effectively and prosecutors handle them as they do less sensitive cases.

The Center's 600-page study, based on wide research and 30 field trips, summed up humiliations of a victim's police and medical examinations by saying: "She was raped in private during the crime. She has now been raped in public."

CENTER DIRECTOR Margaret J. Gates said the report shows "a need for criminal justice officials, medical authorities and community organizations to work together to develop coordinated anti-rape programs."

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which financed the study with a $238,000 grant, said it intends to publish 200-page how-to manuals based on the report's guidelines and distribute them to police across the country.

Police should have women investigators, separate rape squads from vice squads, develop better suspect tracing and identification techniques, and should work closer with doctors who gather medical evidence, the study said.

THE STUDY said prosecutors should assign one attorney to work with the victim throughout the case. It also proposed changing laws to limit the humiliations victims undergo when defense lawyers question them in court.

In a growing number of cities, the study said, volunteer groups have set up rape crisis centers that help police and prosecutors while easing victims' ordeals. The Center has developed guidelines for setting them up.

Don't guess on furniture stains

Dear Dorothy: We had some dinner guests recently and used our new walnut veneer table. After dinner we realized some water had gotten under a place mat. How can we get this stain off? — Susan Ernest

The important thing with any furniture stain is that no wrong treatment be tried "on guess" because a mistake can make a stain impossible to eliminate. Over the years I've used a highly polished dining table board to try out home remedies passed on by readers. One is to make a paste of fine cigar ash with furniture oil, apply, allow to dry, then wipe off with oil. The reason for cigar ash is that it's like talcum powder, except slightly abrasive.

Another method is to make a thin paste of salt and salad oil, leave on for an hour or so, then wipe off. Many swear by the treatment leaving mayonnaise or petroleum jelly on overnight, wiping off next day. Face cream works the same way. One home remedy didn't work so I used a well-known spot remover furniture polish on my board. It took a little elbow grease, but the rings and spots did come off. Remember, the secret of any method is a highly polished surface.

Dear Dorothy: Noticed a reader suggested adding a good-size pinch of sugar to vegetables like corn, peas and tomatoes — and even sauces — to give them that little "oomph." I find myself adding a bit of sugar to most frozen vegetables gives them a fresher taste. — Amy Boucheron

Dear Dorothy: About the time tomatoes are out of season and are fairly expensive, tangerines are in. I often cut up a tangerine for my mixed salad but our vitamin C, too. — Lorena Billings

Boston historical tour puts reality in legends' place

by KATHERINE BOYCE

There probably are many people who, like me, view the American Revolution as something akin to a fairy tale.

As school children we're enchanted by the romance and suspense of Paul Revere's night ride, the smell of gunpowder in the Boston Massacre, the sweaty brows of statesmen who sat long hours in musty old state houses declaring freedom, liberty, independence.

I was reared in the Midwest where the land is flat, and the only historic shrine I had seen is the mansion of a barbed-wire king; so I looked forward to traveling to the rocky hills of the east coast this summer to learn about the Bicentennial first hand in Boston, the scene of the first bloodshed of the Revolution.

AND THERE THE fairy tale ended. Perhaps I expected too much. I thought I would see the neat, well-kept buildings and monuments pictured in my grade-school history book. Instead I found the old city with a 20th Century look that takes its history for granted. There were no banners, no plastic commercialism, no parades. I was left to discover Boston's history on my own.

It was an adventure. Touring Boston is fairly easy. The Freedom Trail Foundation, Inc., conducts a free tour of the city which can be taken by bus or on foot. The historical sites are well marked, and the sidewalk is inlaid with red bricks to keep the wandering tourist on the right track.

With map in hand I started on foot in the bustling heart of Boston.

The first stop was Boston Common, the Frog Pond, and the Old Elm where pirates, witches and Quakers were hanged. According to the guidebook, the Common was used for training militia and keeping cows. By law, cows may still be kept there today.

But I saw no cows, only men in business suits, hot dog vendors and several shirtless young men who wore long hair and picked at guitars.

"FREEDOM IS just another word for nothing left to lose..." From Boston Common it's a short walk to the State House and Archives, Park Street Church and the Granary Burying Ground where John Hancock, Samuel Adams, Paul Revere and James Otis are buried.

The visitor could spend hours here reading the quaint "Here lies" epitaphs barely legible on the worn headstones. One stone inscribed "Mary Goose" is believed to mark the grave of "Mother Goose." I determined that the Americans of the 1700s must have been much shorter than their progeny today, because the grave markers aren't very far apart.

The tour goes on to King's Chapel, the site of the first public school, the statue of Benjamin Franklin, the old corner book store, the old south meeting house and the old State House.

In an intersection next to the State House, a ring of cobblestones marks the site of the Boston Massacre, scene of the first bloodshed of the American Revolution. The 20th Century historian also takes his life in his hands at that corner if he fails to watch for fast moving cars while he examines the marker.

THE FREEDOM Trail now winds through the government section of Boston where government buildings from the 1700s stand side by side with new towering structures housing modern-day Ben Franklins.

This is a good place in the tour to stop for a meal since several of Boston's most famous restaurants are located nearby. One of them, Durgin Park, is located in the market district and has a reputation for employing the most obnoxious waitresses in the United States.

Another spot, Ye Olde Union Oyster House, is the oldest restaurant in Boston. The building has been there since the 1700s. Louis Philippe, who eventually became King of France, lived on the second floor during his exile.

Not knowing which restaurant to choose, I spotted a Freedom Trail tour guide to ask his advice. The contrast between his nasal Boston accent and my flat Midwestern tone was amusing, but he was polite when correcting my mispronunciations.

I had difficulty concentrating on his words, though, because I was fascinated by a large blue vein protruding on the end of his nose. Perhaps that is what is meant by a Boston Blue Nose.

His advice was good. I chose the Oyster House and enjoyed a delicious, inexpensive seafood lunch. The restaurant is a historic landmark in itself. Each of the three floors has a character all its own. The top floor is bright and elegant, the second floor is dark and intimate, and the first floor has a snack shop atmosphere with a pool of live lobsters swimming apprehensively before the faces of hungry customers.

The next stop, Paul Revere's house, built in 1677, is one of the best-kept tourist attractions. A tour of the two-story frame building takes the visitor into the lives of 18th Century patriots.

OLD NORTH CHURCH, just a gallop away, was the most depressing part of the trip. I expected it to be the climax of my tour, because I was anxious to see the place where Revere risked his life on the night of April 18, 1775, to warn of the Redcoats' advance on Lexington and Concord.

But Old North Church is located in one of the most run-down neighborhoods of the city. Litter lined the streets and parkways. Children played ball in the street, old women sat on park benches, their wrinkled faces and tired eyes watching the commotion. A group of 40 to 50 old men sat in the park, in the shadow of the old church, playing cards and smoking big black cigars.

In the midst of it all stood the white steeple and the statue of Revere galloping through the night. It wasn't a storybook picture of history. It was real.

Yet the mixture of people and languages was refreshing. This is America today, I thought. The gates of the nation are open to all. Year after year people come here to live and become citizens. They learn our Constitution, they learn our history, and they are told, like the rest of us, that even the poorest child can grow up to be a senator, congressman or judge. It's all part of the American Dream.

That's what our forefathers fought for.

CLOWN TRUMPETER Italo Fornaseri welcomes viewers behind-the-scenes of the Hoxie Bros. Circus during a segment of Kodak's "Profile '76."

Multimedia show airs Wednesday

Capital trip top prize in 'Profile'

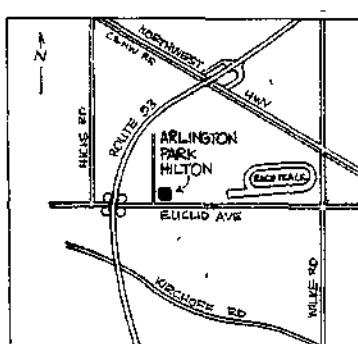

If you have never visited Washington, D.C., 1976 will be the year to do it. That trip could be very easy if you win the grand prize at the Eastman Kodak multi-media show "Profile '76" sponsored by The Herald Wednesday and Thursday.

The one-week vacation for two to Washington includes air transportation via American Airlines and accommodations at the Shoreham Americana Hotel.

The Kodak program will be presented at 8 p.m. each night in the Jimmy Durante Ballroom of the Arlington Park Hilton, Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road, Arlington Heights.

FREE TICKETS for the 90-minute Kodak extravaganza, cosponsored by the Hilton and American Airlines, are available from participating Northwest suburban travel agents and from all Herald offices.

Washington, D.C., will be a hub of activity in the Bicentennial year, with numerous special events in addition to the year-round highlights of the city.

You can visit the National Archives, the domed Capitol Building, the 555-foot Washington Monument or memorials to Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson. Explore the Smithsonian Institution, watch the Supreme Court in session or tour the White House.

See the Chinese pandas in the National Zoo, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery and Washington's historic Georgetown section. Attend one of the performances at the Kennedy Center or drive to the sprawling estate of Mount Vernon.

AMONG THE special activities planned for 1976 is the Festival of American Folklife June 14-Aug. 31, featuring American arts, crafts, customs and foods. Representatives from more than 50 "ancestor" nations will join the people of America on the mail.

Besides a chance to win the Washington trip, viewers at the "Profile '76" show will have opportunities for other door prizes — silver Bicentennial coin sets from the Northwest Suburban Coin Club, tickets to the May 29 grand opening of Marriott's Great America amusement park in Gurnee, Bicentennial flag sets from the Bank of Elk Grove and Bicentennial commemorative gifts from Cunningham, Leahy & Walsh of Palatine.

Prizes from area travel agents include dinners, weekends at various resorts, and flight accessories.

"Profile '76" is a special salute to our nation's 200th birthday in slides, movies, music, sound and narration. Be sure to get your tickets today!

Food fibers needed for bowel function

I am now following your advice on whole wheat cereals and breads and also include more fruits and vegetables in my diet. I feel much improved now, although at first I experienced much gas and was miserable. I was relieved to read in your column one night that we could expect to have some gas pains at first on this program. My gas was so bad that I was even examined for a gall bladder attack and nothing was found. All that is now cleared, and I have no bowel problems.

Do you realize how many people have constipation and bowel problems? I'm like a crusader now and want everyone I know to be able to follow this program. It really makes life worth living again. I can't tell you how many years I have eaten a bland diet, missed out on the foods I wanted to eat and suffered with this bowel problem. I hope you will continue to try to get this message to more people. It could do a lot of good.

Thank you for sharing your experience with others.

As far as the diet is concerned, the program is designed to put more bulk in your diet. It's a switch from older ideas about diet for colon problems. Many of the old bland diets were gelatin-type diets, and when the food was absorbed from the intestine there was literally no residue left for normal bowel function. In many cases of spastic colon and constipation, such diets only made matters worse, rather than helping them. Your body was designed to eat food that contained natural food fibers, not refined foods.

One of the best fibers is cereal fiber, as you find in whole wheat products. The white flour products are not harmful, they simply replace food that contains fiber you need. They leave out an essential diet component by refining a natural food and eliminating the brans.

It's true that when you switch over you can have a lot of gas. The intestine has to readjust to the diet change. That is why many people do better with a gradual switch. Such a change might be accomplished by simply switching to whole wheat bread for a week or two, then adding a bowl of cereal with cereal fiber each day. You can get the cereal fiber from whole wheat products such as shredded wheat, or from any of the bran flakes or Grape-Nut Flakes. Or, if you prefer you can cook oatmeal.

If you get too much gas, cut back on the cereal and ease into the program more gradually. Meanwhile start increasing the salads in your diet for more bulk, add fresh fruits and start eliminating white flour foods and sweets. Then stick to the program long enough to pass through the gas stage to get real benefits. Drink plenty of water too, in case you have been neglecting that department. Soon you will be on the road to being a normal, regular person with no worries about constipation, laxatives or symptoms, that go with these problems.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Crane, Mikva see Rocky's action as trouble for Ford

VICE PRESIDENT Nelson Rockefeller has lunch with Sec. of State Henry Kissinger after he told President Ford he would not be his running mate in the 1976 presidential campaign. Rockefeller said he would continue to serve as vice president but did not want to be considered for the 1976 vice presidential nomination.

Mixed reactions voiced

Rocky's move a surprise to Northwest residents

by LUISA GINETTI
Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's announcement Monday, that he would not run as President Ford's running mate on the 1976 Republican ticket, came as a surprise to many Northwest suburban residents and brought mixed reaction.

Philip Hughes of Des Plaines said he was not surprised by Rockefeller's announcement. "I think he had an objective to get as high politically as he could. Now he's getting older and four years is a long time."

An Arlington Heights woman said she was surprised by the decision and thinks Rockefeller may want to run for President. "It's been mentioned before and I often wonder if he's planning to run himself," she said.

MRS. HAROLD W. Davidson of Mount Prospect said she was very surprised by the announcement but she had no specific reaction to it. "He was not elected in the first place," she said.

Mrs. John M. Hungerford of Wheeling said she thought Rockefeller had made a personal decision rather than one based on politics. "Maybe he's served as much as he wants to," she said. "He got to be vice president and maybe he felt that's as much as he wanted to serve."

Mrs. Frank Napoli of Buffalo Grove said she had not heard the news and was surprised by it. She said she had no specific reaction to the announcement because "I don't care for him."

MRS. FRANK LAZOWSKI of Palatine said she knew of the cabinet shakeup but had not heard about Rockefeller's announcement.

Mrs. Kirby Lee of Hoffman Estates said she thought the matter was "suspicious. I heard there's a lot of housecleaning going on," she said. "I want to hear what his (Rockefeller) reasons are before I form an opinion."

Mrs. Harry Clinton of Arlington Heights said she heard the announcement about Rockefeller but had not given the matter much thought. "Nothing surprises me in politics anymore," she said.

Stock prices plummet; Dow drops to 825.72

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell sharply Monday in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The blue-chip Dow Jones industrial average fell 10.32 points to 825.72. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.95 to 88.09, and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 31 cents.

Declines routed advances, 915 to 444 among the 1,804 issues crossing the tape. A total of 445 issues remained unchanged.

Volume slipped to 11,400,000 shares from 12,910,000 traded Friday.

Losers included aircrafts, autos, electronics, computers, oils, oil services, chemicals, drugs and many of the glamors.

Donakson Lufkin & Jenrette led the Big Board actives, off 1/8 to 2 on 194,800 shares, including a block of 168,000 shares at 2. Texaco exdividend followed, off 5/8 to 23 3/8 on 168,800 shares. Santa Fe Industries was third, off 1/4 to 28 1/2 on 118,800 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 28.

Prices closed lower in sluggish trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share lost one cent. Volume totaled 1,280,000 shares, compared with 1,380,000 traded Friday.

president instead of president."

MODERATE Republicans named Illinois Sen. Charles Percy, Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker and George Bush, U.S. envoy to China, as possible vice presidential candidates.

Republican leaders generally agreed the other White House moves, including the ouster of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, considered Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's chief opponent in the Ford cabinet, will have no political effect on Ford.

Capital Hill leaders, including Crane and Mikva, expressed unhappiness over Schlesinger's firing, however, because it results in an apparent increase in power for Kissinger.

Crane and Mikva joined with other congressmen in expressing unhappiness over the firing of Schlesinger.

The "summary" way Schlesinger was dismissed indicates "there must have been some sort of confrontation with Kissinger saying 'he goes' or 'I go,'" Crane said. "If it came to that kind of choice, I'd rather lose Kissinger."

MIKVA SAID, "Schlesinger was a very independent soul and spoke his mind. This means they are going to run a very tight ship over there, and the president will get advice only from people who agree with him."

U.S. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called for "a proper and timely explanation" for Schlesinger's departure. U.S. Rep. Paul Findley, R-20th, a member of the House International Relations Committee, said Schlesinger's departure "is a great loss to the country."

The firing of William Colby as director of the Central Intelligence Agency was seen by some as separate from the move involving Schlesinger. Crane said, "I wouldn't lump Colby together with Schlesinger. I think they just felt they had to have somebody else in the CIA."

Kissinger on top, Rumsfeld follows

rying out" U.S. foreign policy. But he praised Schlesinger and Colby for their service.

EARLIER IN THE day, it was learned Kissinger had told friends recently that Ford would soon have to decide between Schlesinger and himself, but was confident he would prevail.

Ford confirmed Kissinger would relinquish his companion role as the President's national security adviser and chief of the National Security Council staff. That position will be filled by Kissinger's NSC deputy, Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, a Kissinger loyalist.

After the news conference, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., one of Schlesinger's staunchest supporters in Congress, said Ford "handled the announcement like a person putting up a notice on a bulletin board."

Said Jackson: "There was a lack of credibility in his explanation of why individuals he had said had done a superb job were nevertheless fired."

"It's not a new team," said Jackson. "It's the old team of Kissinger and Scowcroft."

AS FOR ROCKEFELLER, Ford insisted the vice president's decision was entirely his own.

"Under no circumstances was it a request by me," Ford said, dismissing suggestions that Rockefeller's decision was somehow intended to shore up the President's political strength among GOP conservatives favoring former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California for the Republican nomination.

Ford said it was premature to speculate whom he might choose for his running mate next year.

He said Richard Cheney, who has been Rumsfeld's White House deputy, will succeed Rumsfeld as chief of staff. No decision has been made on Bush's successor in Peking, he said.

Ford said Morton, former interior secretary, is resigning as commerce secretary to return to private life. Richardson, who resigned as attorney general during the "Saturday Night Massacre" of Watergate two years ago, went to London as ambassador last January.

COLBY'S DEPARTURE came as no surprise. Ford had made no secret of his intention to name a new CIA director, although no announcement was expected until after Congress completed its investigation of alleged abuses by the intelligence agency.

The president said he had not notified Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev of his decision to oust Schlesinger, and declined to speculate how Brezhnev might interpret the move.

"What did Secretary Schlesinger do wrong?" a reporter asked.

"I've answered that affirmatively by saying I wanted my own team," Ford replied.

He said he had not decided on replacements for Richardson in London or for David Packard, who resigned recently as chief fund raiser for the Ford campaign.

On other matters, the President said there was "no serious probability" of national repercussions in the event of a financial default by New York City.

He denied that his "minimal" differences with Rockefeller over the issue played any part in the vice president's decision against seeking re-nomination.

Ford said his negotiations with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat were "very successful" and that any decisions on military aid would be announced after Sadat returns home Wednesday.

Harper offers seminars on management training

Six management seminars will be offered by Harper College in Palatine this month, with the first taking place Thursday.

The seminars are:
• "Managing Management Time," Thursday, led by David L. Schmidt, president of Schmidt, Pryor and Associates of Mission, Kan.
• "Managerial Decision Making," Nov. 13 and 14, led by Gerald Bruder of Gerald Bruder and Assoc., St. Louis, Mo.
• "Equal Employment Opportunity," Nov. 19, led by Ronald Raine of Lawrence-Leiter and Co., Kansas City.

• "Managing the Unsatisfactory Performer" and "Financial Management for Small Businesses," Nov. 20 and 21 respectively, both led by Lawrence Steinmetz of the University of Colorado.

• "Improving Communication Skills," Nov. 25, led by Lloyd Peyton of Central Life Insurance Co.

Fee for a one-day seminar is $30, two days $100. Registration information is available from the Harper Business and Industrial Programs office.

Equivalency tests slated at Harper

Applications for the November sessions of the high school equivalency examinations will be accepted today from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Harper College community counseling center.

The tests will be administered Nov. 14, 15 and 21. The tests are open to adults 19 years old and over, living in Cook County, who have not received a high school diploma.

Fee for the test is $5 and covers all three test sessions.

5 years.

That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature. Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

We'd appreciate it if you'd help us clear up the confusion. Next time somebody tells you it takes 10 years for a Savings Bond to mature, smile indulgently. And then show him this ad.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Now Bonds mature in 5 years.

Tickets on sale for two games in state tourney

Tickets will be on sale again today for the state football tournament games Wednesday involving Herald area schools.

The matchups send Glenbard West of the West Suburban against Schaumburg at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon on the Saxon field and Hersey against St. Viator at 2:00 at Elk Grove High School.

Tickets for the Schaumburg game are on sale in the athletic director's office at the high school. The office is open on school days from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tickets will be $2.00 for adults and $1 for students and the sale will be on a first-come-first-serve basis.

Schaumburg High School is located at 1100 West Schaumburg Road in the village.

St. Viator High School will hold a pre-sale of tickets from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. today in the office of Athletic Director Bill Pirman. Tickets will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

St. Viator is located at 1213 E. Oakton in Arlington Heights.

Tickets may be obtained today at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the main office. They may be purchased from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday.

Admission again is $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students. Buses to the game will be provided by Hersey for 50 cents round trip but must be purchased today. No bus tickets will be available on Wednesday.

Those requesting tickets at Hersey are asked to pay in cash. No checks will be accepted.

Quarterfinal games in the Class 5A state playoffs will be held Saturday afternoon. Semifinals are set for Nov. 15 with the championship Saturday, Nov. 22 at 2:30 p.m. in Normal, Ill.

The matchups Wednesday on a 5A level are Maine South vs. Loyola, Hersey vs. St. Viator, Deerfield vs. Glenbrook South, and Glenbard West vs. Schaumburg in the upper bracket.

In the lower bracket it will be Belleville West vs. Carl Sandburg, Willowbrook vs. Homewood-Flossmoor, Edwardsville vs. Rock Island and St. Charles vs. Rockford Boylan.

The Herald area sent two representatives into the 1974 playoffs. Schaumburg dropped its opening test 14-8 to East Leyden, and St. Viator topped Deerfield 19-8 before falling to Willowbrook 22-6.

Glenbrook North captured the 1974 championship on a 5A level with a 19-13 overtime victory over East St. Louis. Willowbrook and Gordon Tech also reached the semifinals last fall.

HIGH STEPPING. Tony Desardi, left, of Stevens Point, Wis., and Jim Morrone of Detroit battle in Illinois Invitational Karate Tournament at Prospect High School. Seconds after the picture was taken Desardi accidentally landed a blow to the head, stunning Morrone, and forcing a disqualification of the Wisconsin entry. Morrone was taken to Northwest

Community Hospital by the paramedics where he was treated and released. With the disqualification Morrone was given second place in the tourney. (Photo by Dom Najolia)

Volleyball action begins for area teams

by PAUL LOGAN
The top four teams in Mid-Suburban League volleyball last year were Prospect, Wheeling, Arlington and Forest View.

Of this foursome, Forest View appears the best of the 13-team league going into this week's opening meets.

Two non-conference meets will kick-off the schedule tonight with Sacred Heart at Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows at West Leyden.

The MSL's first meet will take place a day early when Conant meets hosting Arlington Wednesday night. The rest of the conference begins on Thursday.

Buffalo Grove at Hoffman Estates,

Elk Grove at Fremd, Prospect at Hersey, Rolling Meadows at Palatine and Schaumburg at Wheeling. Forest View has a bye.

"We seem to be picking up where we left off in the districts," says Denise Van Huele, Forest View's coach. "We're really hustling."

The Forest View Falcons lost in overtime to the Arlington Cardinals in the Palatine District last year. Van Huele has all but one starter back from that fine team. "I've had them for three years," she points out. "There's a lot of experience there."

Forest View's coach says that besides experience, her team is very well-rounded — "fairly quick, defensively strong."

Arlington, which was the only team to advance to the sectionals, also topped the Falcons in the playoff to determine the third best team in the MSL. Cardinal coach Linda Swanson only has two starters back, but adds "I carried a lot of freshmen last year who were mostly jayvee people. They're all coming back. The team really looks good."

How good won't be known until after the first couple of meets. However, Swanson calls this year's team "quicker and able to jump higher" than last year's district champs.

"I'm glad I'm not in the South Division, that's for sure," she added.

Several teams may be a very formidable challenge to the Falcons. Van Huele is concerned about Schaumburg and Elk Grove. Although Prospect and Rolling Meadows lost a lot of talent, they, too, are potential threats because of their fine coaches.

Sandy Pifer, coach of the Prospect Knights, will have only one starter from last season's Mid-Suburban champs. She's had the biggest turnout ever, however, starting out 40 before cutting down to 31.

"It's difficult to say (how good her team is) without having a match yet," says Pifer. "Considering that this is a building year, the kids look real good. It's a hard-working group."

"Forest View should be a power in our division. They should really be loaded."

In the North Division, perennial champ Wheeling is also a question mark. Coach Donna Dubblede saw three starters graduate, but "we've got a lot of really decent freshmen. We'll be in contention." She calls her team "A little better (talent-wise), but inexperienced."

TYPICAL OF THE action last season in Mid-Suburban League volleyball, Prospect's Sue Tolzien and Mara Rautenberg (34) starred as the Knights won the title. Both have graduated, opening the way to a possible new champ.

Rams embarrass wingless Eagles

Quarterback James Harris threw for three touchdowns and the Rams defense scored two others and set up a third as Los Angeles drubbed the Philadelphia Eagles 42-3 in the nationally televised Monday night NFL game.

The Rams, now 6-1 and running away with the National Football Conference Western Division title, dominated the game after the first quarter and handed the hapless Eagles their sixth loss in seven games. It was the most one-sided contest in the Monday night series this season.

Before going out in the fourth quarter, Harris was 10-for-20 with three touchdowns and 207 yards. Two of his touchdown passes were to wide receiver Harold Jackson, a former Eagle, and the third went to wide receiver Jack Snow.

The defense scored on a 78-yard touchdown romp on an interception by Isiah Robertson and a 20-yard run by linebacker Fred Dryer with a recovered fumble. Free safety Bill Simpson set up the Rams' first score in the first quarter with an interception.

The Rams capitalized on an interception for one touchdown and scored two others on bombs from Harris to Harold Jackson to take a 21-3 halftime lead.

The Rams first score came in the first quarter after Bill Simpson picked off an Eagles' pass and returned it 17 yards to the Philadelphia 23. Five plays later former Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti plunged over from the one.

In the second quarter, Harris lifted a 54-yard bomb to Jackson who ran away from his defender to go into the end zone unmolested.

Late in the second quarter the Harris-Jackson combination struck again on a 30-yard pass that the wide receiver caught on the goal line right in the corner despite interference from Eagles defensive back Clifford Brooks.

The Eagles only score came in the second quarter on a 36-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann after an Eagles' drive deep in the Ram territory was thwarted by an offside penalty.

Sox' Johnson on comeback trail

The Chicago White Sox have "acquired" a proven major league pitcher without making a trade. He's Bart Johnson. Roland Hemond, the club's general manager, saw the former star hurler make an outstanding comeback over the weekend in Puerto Rico.

Johnson, making his first start since an operation for a herniated disc, pitched seven strong innings, walking only one and striking out three. One of his strikeout victims was Chicago Cub Jerry Motalet. Hemond said Monday that Johnson displayed a good fastball and hard slider enroute to the victory. His last outing was in the spring of 1975.

Forget winter. Cubs open April 9

Thought baseball was over, did you? Now hear this. The Cincinnati Reds, newly crowned world champions will open the 1976 National League season Thursday, April 8 against the Houston Astros. It was announced Monday. With the Reds maintaining their tradition of beginning play a day ahead of the rest of the league, eight teams will open the season Friday with Philadelphia entertaining Pittsburgh Saturday.

The Friday games will have Los Angeles at San Francisco, Chicago at St. Louis, Montreal at New York and Atlanta at San Diego.

The following week, teams starting the season on the road will play their home openers. San Francisco will be at Houston and San Diego at Los Angeles April 12. The following day New York will be at Chicago. St. Louis at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Atlanta with the final home opener in Montreal April 14 with the Expos hosting Philadelphia.

Anthony Davis signs for million

Running back Anthony Davis, who broke all of O. J. Simpson's records at the University of Southern California and went on to success in the now-defunct World Football League, has signed a five-year $1 million contract with the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio, captured his second Professional Bowlers Assn. championship in three weeks by winning the $55,000 Canada Dry Open at Westgate Lanes Monday night. Indiana University beat the U.S.S.R. National basketball team in an exhibition game, 94-78, behind Scott May's 34 points.

Al Bianchi was dismissed Monday night as head coach of the Virginia Squires, the American Basketball Assn. club he has directed since 1969.

Former griddler goes on trial

Former pro football promoter Rommie Loudd goes on trial Tuesday charged with dealing in cocaine while at the helm of the now-defunct Florida Blazers. The one-time linebacker, who became a personnel director for the New England Patriots, actually faces three trials on charges of delivery of cocaine, conspiracy to deliver cocaine and embezzlement of state sales tax monies.

Circuit Judge W. Rogers Turner, laying down ground rules for the first trial, said he will set the dates for Loudd's other trials when he finds out if attorneys can agree on a jury in Orange County.

"We want to make sure that pre-trial publicity will not affect the jurors' ability to decide the case based on evidence presented," Turner said.

Loudd's attorney, Ellis Rubin of Miami, earlier moved to get live television coverage of the trial, claiming it was the only way his client could get a fair trial because of the publicity in the case.

Ask Andy

Frog eggs—nature's tasty treat

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Maria Heymann, 10, of Lancaster, Pa., for her question:
HOW MANY EGGS DOES A FROG LAY?

Many people enjoy a tasty meal of frog legs, though frog eggs are not on our menus. However, fishes and lots of other wild creatures regard frog eggs as a tasty treat. Every spring, zillions of those little black balls in their gobs of clear jelly become part of nature's food chain. So naturally the frogs lay lots of extras to make sure that some survive to grow up.

An adult frog is a small amphibious animal with a super-long tongue, bulging eyes and long back legs. He is called an amphibian because his life cycle includes a tour of duty in the water when he is young and later a place in the sun as a full-fledged air-breathing animal.

His life begins as an egg in a fresh-water pond or lake. The mother frog generally lays her eggs in one large clump, usually fastened to a water-weed. The number of eggs she lays and the place she lays them depend on what kind of frog she is. The little wood frog of Canada lays about 1,000 eggs in ponds that may still have ice on them. The American bullfrog may deposit as many as 20,000 in one huge egg mass.

The eggs generally hatch from four to 15 days after they are laid, and the emerging creatures look like tiny raisins with tails. At this stage they are called tadpoles, and their kindergarten days are spent in the water. They live the life of fish, breathing much as fish do with gills.

If food is scarce, the tadpoles may take many weeks to grow and develop into frogs. But if they have plenty of waterweeds and pond scum, most tadpoles become frogs in a couple of months. First the hind legs appear, then the front legs and finally the tadpole's tail begins to disappear. But before a new frog is ready to take his first leaps on land, he must exchange his gills for a pair of air-breathing lungs.

We share our continent with dozens of different frogs, and each species has its own idea of family life. Some lay a few hundred eggs, here and there, in the moist woods. Others lay floating masses in the water. Most of them lay between 2,000 and 3,000 during the summer season. Most of these eggs and most of the tadpoles become food for fishes and turtles, snakes and birds, beetles and spiders.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Dee Romano, 11, of Mission Viejo, Calif., for her question:

HOW MANY QUILLS HAS THE AVERAGE PORCUPINE?

The average porcupine has about 30,000 prickly quills. However, now and then he loses a few and it takes time for new ones to grow in. He often defends himself by lashing out with his tail, and when this happens some of the quills get stuck in his enemy's flesh. The spikes are set loosely in his skin and sometimes come out easily for no good reason at all.

Though the porcupine seems to be covered with spikes, his coat is actually a mixture of hair and quills. And the quills develop from tufts of hair. Some people suspect that he can fling them like darts and wound his foes from a distance. But this is not likely. When forced to defend himself, he lashes his strong tail with all his might. Usually he aims at his enemy's face, where the jabbing spikes do the most harm. He expects to lose a few, but replacements soon bring his average quill quota back up to 30,000.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY, in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Amateur Thespians shine in show, 'Damn Yankees'

by PAT ADAM

A review

Remember the days when it seemed nobody could beat the Yankees and the biggest joke in Washington, D.C., was the Senators?

Well, even if you don't, those days are being revived at Elk Grove High School by Music On Stage with its production of the musical, "Damn Yankees" — though the story line's not exactly as it originally appeared in the newspapers.

With book by George Abbot and Douglas Wallop and music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, "Damn Yankees" has a Faustian twist.

Joe Boyd wants the Senators to beat those "Damn Yankees" and win the American League pennant so much that he's willing to make a pact with the devil, who appears in the guise of a fast-talking promoter, Mr. Applegate. Joe trades his marriage for the chance to be a baseball hero.

IN A FLASH, literally, Joe loses 20 years and his wife, Meg, to become a youthful ball-slugging wonder, Joe Hardy. Too big for the shoes of the older Joe, Hardy sheds them and is hailed as "Shoeless Joe from Ham-bil Mo" when given his chance with the Senators. With the addition of Joe, the club is transformed and wins the pennant.

Mid-week review

Joe Boyd's been smart enough to include an escape clause in his bargain with Applegate, but the devil, not one to be outflanked, has his own means of sealing off Joe's escape in the seductive form of Lola. And "Whatever Lola Wants, Lola Gets" — namely Joe.

Beth Woods is easily the star of the show as the beguiling Lola. Well-proportioned in both voice and body, she obviously relishes her role, playing it without inhibition. That's not easy for a nonprofessional in a part like Lola's. She's really great.

AND TIM BURKE comes across strong as the young Joe Hardy. A winsome young fellow, he also possesses an excellent set of pipes which he knows how to use with feeling.

Top-notch performances also are turned in by Venus Miller as Joe Boyd's loving and faithful wife, John Schile as the wily Applegate and Dan Culliton as the Senators' manager. Jan DiCosola and Sue Louiseau add a comic touch in the roles of Sister and Doris.

The ball club chorus is outstanding, particularly Larry Peterson, George Wajda and Joel Cohen. In the ever popular "You Gotta Have Heart" they are superb, as Dan Culliton contributes much with his comic antics.

SUSAN WILLE is not quite aggressive enough as the snooping reporter who has her suspicions about Joe Hardy, and Tom St. Leger lacks conviction as he bemoans those "Damn Yankees" in opening scenes and later as he sings farewell to his wife in the fitting "Goodbye Old Girl."

The female chorus, led by Doris and Sister, are a sight to behold in their number as a Joe Hardy fan club. Their costumes are a riot.

John Schile designed the sets; all are good, but I liked the dugout best.

Director for this production is Hank Vandenberg, and wife Beth did the choreography. Lynn Jensen directs the orchestra, and Betty Myers coached the singers.

Curtain goes up at 8:30 p.m. on two more performances this Friday and Saturday. Ticket information, 966-4720.

There's some luck in duplicate play

If you played in the spring charity game, got to five clubs and made it, you should have the warm feeling of having bid and played this hand very well.

If you bid six clubs and went down, you could always complain that you would have made it if the club finesse had worked.

If you bid three notrump either after an opening notrump with 17 high-

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby card points and a six-card club suit (a bid not recommended by either us or any other writers) or after a jump rebid in notrump (again not recommended but not really a bad call) your score would depend on the opening lead.

A prosaic fourth-best diamond lead against notrump would hold declarer to seven tricks; against any other suit lead he would make at least three notrump and might well make four or five for a really good, but rather undeserved score.

All in all, this hand shows that there is plenty of luck in duplicate bridge.

Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

Crane, Mikva see trouble for Ford

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year "if we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced formation of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Martenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice

Rocky's pullout from '76 race 'his idea': Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Dist. 59 OKs unit district study

A resolution to reopen the study of a unit school district for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 was unanimously approved by the Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night.

Board member Emil Bahnmaier proposed that a unit district study committee drawn from all members of the community be reestablished. A study on the unit district was done in 1973, but it was decided not to implement the concept.

A unit district would have one administration and board of education governing the elementary and high school. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten to eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

BAHNMAIER SAID there was "definite interest" in the unit district on the part of the community and that the board would remiss in its duty if it did not reopen the study.

"I think the entire study should be reviewed," he said. "The financial picture has changed quite a bit as has the population of the district. The educational impact should also be reviewed."

District resident Joseph Stecker, Mount Prospect, suggested the committee should determine how a unit district would be affected if Dist. 59 had to close some school due to lack of enrollment. Board Pres. Judith Zanca said it was "premature" to consider closing schools. She said a school's enrollment would have to drop to less than 150 students to consider closing it. The smallest school enrollment in the district is about 240.

BAHNMAIER SAID High School

Dist. 214, which will likely close one or two high schools in the next 10 years, will probably oppose the unit district because part of its tax base would be removed.

He said, however, that the economic impact on Dist. 214 would not be as severe as in 1973 now that the state

Utility tax would bring $1.5 million

A proposed 5 per cent utility tax on telephone, electricity and natural gas bills would bring the city about $1.5 million in revenue annually, Des Plaines officials said Monday night.

The figures were obtained at the request of city officials who are considering the adoption of a utility tax as a way of raising additional revenue for the city. The city council took no action after the figures were presented.

Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, chairman of the city council's finance and insurance committee, said the estimate is based on figures supplied by the Central Telephone Co., Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Northern Ill. Gas Co. and Commonwealth Edison Co. He said state and federal taxes plus the cost of administering the tax, would cost the city about $150,000 a year.

Bolek said he is opposed to the proposed tax. "I think it is a tax we don't want," he said.

"I think we have to look to other sources of revenue," he said.

OFFICIALS REVIVED talks of the utility tax recently after City Comptroller Duane L. Blietz said the city would need an additional $800,000 to $900,000 in revenue to meet rising costs and balance next year's city budget.

Some city council members have been hesitant to adopt such a tax because they fear it would be unpopular with residents.

Mayor Herber H. Behrel, who is vacationing in Arizona and did not attend the meeting has been a supporter of the utility tax for some time. He said that while the tax may be unpopular with city residents, it would be a way to bring in substantial revenue through a single tax.

The mayor said he would rather have the city enact a utility tax than to continue to "nickel and dime" residents with increases in city fees.

The city council recently voted to increase fees for garbage pickup, vehicle licenses for large trucks, liquor licenses vehicle license transfers.

ALDERMEN ALSO are considering adoption of a real estate transfer tax of $2 per $1,000 on real estate transactions.

If the tax is approved, the seller of a home or piece of property which sells for $50,000 would be assessed $100.

Bolek estimated a real estate transfer tax would bring in about $100,000 in revenue each year.

Local Realtors and residents already have voiced opposition to the proposed tax, saying it is unfair and discriminatory.

Dist. 63 teachers call strike vote

by JUDY JOBBITT

Teachers in East Maine Dist. 63 have called for a strike vote for Wednesday following a stalemate in contract talks after a nine-hour negotiating session Saturday.

Marilyn Hadden, chief negotiator for the teachers, said Monday that continued negotiations with Fred Lifton, the board's professional negotiator, was "an exercise in futility."

The union board of directors met Monday and voted unanimously to recommend that teachers vote to strike. A date for the strike has not been announced.

The Saturday negotiating session was the first held since teachers declared an impasse in talks the first week of October and demanded mediation. A mediator met with negotiators.

UNION NEGOTIATORS turned down the board's latest offer of a 6 per cent across-the-board salary in-

Maine junior's clowning takes turn for the serious

by JUDY JOBBITT

A day in the life of Chuck Elstner could include juggling, a gymnast's workout or just plain clowning around.

But for this junior at Maine High School, clowning around could be serious business someday.

Church recently tried out for the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus Clown School and passed the audition with flying colors.

"I thought I'd just watch the clown tryouts," he said. "One of the clowns told me I should try out just for the fun of it."

"THE NEXT THING I knew they were reading off the list of clowns who had made the cutoff. Then I heard my name — which was first on the list."

He was handed an application to the clown school and was assured by the dean that he had "practically made it in, which I just couldn't believe," Chuck said. "The dean wanted me to quit school but I had to say no — not until I finished high school."

Chuck says he plans to go back and try out again next year when he is a senior. Despite his successful tryout, he isn't sure clowning is his calling.

"I just want to be an actor and I'd like to learn all the talents when I'm young," he said. "Things like this just keep popping up."

FOR CHUCK clowning is just another method of acting, a way to touch people and make them happy.

His interest in different forms of acting brought him to a mime workshop at school two years ago. That was when he first realized he would rather express himself on stage through actions instead of words.

"I like to tell a story without words. I find that most interesting," he said.

Following the workshop, he decided to sign up for mime courses taught by T. Daniels, a local mime performer who has studied under the master, Marcel Marceau.

"I thought mime would help my acting. Not it's the other way around," he said.

HE PERFORMED a mime act in the school's variety show last year, and by default, was the winner in the state forensics mime competition.

"I took first place at the regional competition in Chicago. From there I was invited to go to the states ornamentation competition in Chicago. From there I was invited to go to the state tournament but when I showed up, I found out I was the only one competing in mime." As a result, he became the tournament's entertainment.

This summer he decided to learn two techniques related to his clown performance. Now he rides a unicycle and can juggle.

His current project is learning how to juggle knives. "You can never stop learning new tricks at juggling," he says.

"I have a theory of practice. I work as long as I'm calm but I also stop on a good try," he said.

CHUCK IS A soft-spoken person who says he isn't "that funny with funny stories and clowning around like that." He saves his performances for the stage or an occasional party.

Chuck spends about three hours each day working on his juggling, mime and acting techniques. He said he is always looking for ways to expand himself as an actor.

As for his future: "My parents were a little worried with my ambitions at first. My dad kind of wanted me to be an engineer until I started performing."

"I don't really care what I do as long as I can make people smile. I love to make them laugh."

'Profits create jobs' drive begins

The Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce fired the opening shot of a new public service campaign Monday aimed at telling the public that a profit is not a dirty word.

The "Profits Create Jobs" campaign was announced by Chamber Pres. Edward J. Bock at a press conference at the Seven Eagles Restaurant.

"Profits are desirable, they create and maintain jobs and generate tax money that supports schools, churches and charities," Bock said.

CHAMBER OFFICIALS indicate that local companies have pledged between $4,000 and $5,000 to fund a series of advertisements, billboards, pamphlets, envelope stuffers and radio and television announcements.

Bock said 35 companies have pledged funds to support the campaign. The Chamber hopes to enlist support of other firms. More than 200 letters seeking support for the project have been mailed to local firms.

He also stated the Chamber hopes to obtain the help of other firms for printing and services to help reduce the actual cost of the campaign.

Bock said the campaign is valued at about $30,000.

Chamber officials expect the effort to last at least three months. Hi Harty, an executive of Universal Oil Products, is drive chairman.

The "Profits Create Jobs" program is the latest effort by the Chamber to bolster its image in the community. Earlier this year, the Chamber released a new logo. Bock has also undertaken a campaign to attract new chamber members.

Dist. 207 test scores at 13-year low

by JUDY JOBBITT

Standardized test scores for High School Dist. 207 freshmen this year were the lowest reported in the district in the past 13 years.

The over-all test score for the district dropped from 16.4 in 1963 to 13.7 this year. While the district is still showing results above the national average, test scores have been rising nationally during the same period. The national average was 11.7 in 1962 compared with 12.5 in 1971.

A test score of 12 is considered normal for an incoming freshman according to the Iowa Test of Educational Development testing service.

The ITED test is given to incoming Dist. 207 freshmen. A score of 13 would indicate that a freshman is one semester ahead of the expected achievement level on the basic skills. Each additional point shows an additional semester's academic growth.

"OUR STUDENTS in Maine Township were two years above the national norm in 1963. Then the scores started going down," said Merlin Schultz, coordinator of pupil personnel services. "We do have some absolute proof there has been a decline on the results of the test. We're getting closer to the national norm."

Seniors also are given the test each fall for the district to determine how much growth students have achieved during their high school years.

Schultz said seniors have maintained the same amount of growth during their high school years since 1963. The over-all test score for seniors this year is 20.3. The current senior class received a score of about 14 as incoming freshmen.

Schultz said test scores are dropping across the nation. "We're not isolated from that phenomenon but we have dropped from a higher plateau. It's an alarming situation for many people."

BOARD PRES. Leonard Grazian said the district is concerned because while "the national norm has gone up, we have gone down. Something is wrong."

The ITED tests students on the basic skills including vocabulary, reading, language arts, mathematics, social studies, science and the use of sources.

In those areas, test scores of Dist. 207 freshmen have shown the following drop over the past 13 years:

- Vocabulary dropped from 16.5 in 1963 to 14.4 this year. The national average was set at 12.9 in 1971.
- Reading scores dropped from 15.5 to 13.5 with the average set at 12.2.
- Language arts dropped from 15.7 to 13.5 with the national average set at 12.7.
- Mathematics scores went down from 14.9 to 12.4 this year with a national norm of 11.6.
- Social studies dropped from 17.1 to 12.2 with the national average set at 11.9.
- Science scores went down from 16.5 to 13.3 with a national average of 13.
- The test on the use of reference material showed a drop from 16.8 to 13 with the national average set at 11.4.

Schultz said Dist. 207 teachers and administrators are working with the elementary school districts to try and develop programs which will improve these test scores.

"We're working to try and reverse this trend," he said. Des Plaines Dist. 62 is funding a program with Maine West High School to get a breakdown on the specific weaknesses shown by freshmen taking the test. He said the two districts also are offering "intensive inservice" for teachers to make them aware of these weaknesses and develop ways to improve the scores.

Tests reveal 6 polluters in Oakton industry park

Tests of sewers in the Oakton Industrial Park have found six firms that are polluting the system, Elk Grove Township officials said Monday night.

Action against the six firms, whose names were not released, is being prepared. In all six cases, excess grease had been dumped into the township's sanitary sewer system.

The township recently put terry-cloth traps into 28 inspection sewers within the industrial park, which lies on both sides of Oakton Street between Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway. Eight of the traps were sent for lab analysis.

TOWNSHIP SECRETARY Nita Stamm said six of the eight traps tested showed higher grease amounts than permitted under township ordinances. The limit is 100 milligrams per liter. She said in two instances the counts were 817 and 413 milligrams per liter.

Also tested were the acid levels in each sewer. Of the eight traps tested, all were under the 10.0 limit, but two were close to the limit, being 9.2 and 9.1.

Mrs. Stamm said further tests were being conducted at the six locations and that the Metropolitan Sanitary District is being contacted about the proper procedures the township should use against the polluters.

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said action, including any necessary legal remedies, will be taken against the polluters as soon as possible. He said the names will not be released until the firms have been notified by letter of their violations. Such letters could go out as early as next week, officials said.

"I THINK WE should grab the worst one and nab him. Hang him on his own putridness," said Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee. "We should lean and lean hard on him."

The township last August passed an ordinance empowering itself to levy fines up to $100 per day for violations. It also can bring legal action and curtail sewer services. The ordinance was passed so that the township would not have to rely on the MSD for enforcement.

Through discoloration of the terry-cloth traps or the presence of pollution odors picked up by the cloths, township officials have a quick indication of a pollution violation.

"It turned out to be a very good idea," Mrs. Stamm said of the traps. "We have six known violators."

In a related matter, the MSD has said it is satisfied with sewer repair work in the Higgins Industrial Park and a previous violation notice against the township will not be pursued. Inspections for illegal connections into the sanitary sewer system will follow, as required by a current MSD program.

Dist. 63 teachers call strike vote

crease. The board's offer would increase the base salary from $8,734 to $9,258.

In September the board offered teachers a flat $800 salary increase for all teachers. The board's earlier offer would have increased the beginning teacher's salary from $8,734 to $9,534.

Teachers are demanding a 9.5 per cent salary increase. The salary for a beginning teacher would increase from $8,734 to $9,574.

Teachers are asking for the 9.5 per cent increase to be split with teachers receiving a 7 per cent salary increase for the first six months of the year and an additional 5 per cent increase for the second half of the year.

Both salary increases would be in addition to the increase teachers receive for an additional year's experience. Teachers receive an increase averaging about 2.5 per cent of their previous year's salary for the extra year's experience.

THE SESSION broke off Saturday when Lifton had to leave, said Barbara Korb, union president. "At that point we had accomplished nothing."

"The board keeps telling us there will be movement but there isn't any," Mrs. Korb said. "We've tried every option open to us except striking. Some teachers didn't even want to wait for mediation. It was difficult to persuade them for us to use every avenue possible before striking. Now we have."

Board negotiator Larry Reiss said Monday night he did not think contract talks had reached a stalemate. "The board has been moving and I think there was some progress made (Saturday)." He said he had no comment on the strike vote. "That's their prerogative."

Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year "if we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced formation of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Martenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Dist. 214 rolls decline 'not indefinite'

'No school closures until 1980'

The closing of a high school may not take place in High School Dist. 214 until 1980.

In reviewing enrollment figures showing a steady decline in students through the 1983-84 school year, the Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday it will be 1980 before enrollment will drop enough to warrant the closing of a high school.

Several board members reported that rumors are circulating in the community that the board has already decided to close a school. Supt. Edward Gilbert said the rumors are untrue.

He said the board is considering all possible solutions to the declining enrollment problem, and the board's "discussion is not based on a decision that we're going to close one or more schools."

BOARD MEMBER Donald Hoeck commented, "We're still just talking. The wrecking crane is not being ordered to any of our eight sites."

The board did review criteria that could be used to determine which school would be closed if the board decides the closing of a school is necessary. The criteria include the location of the school, physical characteristics of the building, cost factors and transportation considerations.

Enrollment is projected to drop 22 per cent in eight years from a high this year of 19,823 students to 15,460 students in 1983. Enrollment in 1980 is projected at 17,015 students. Gilbert said it is only then that Dist. 214 could house all its students in seven buildings.

The board studied school enrollment figures prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for Lake, Cook, DuPage, Kane, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana. The figures show high school enrollment reaches a peak in 1980, drops to a low in 1990 and rises again until the year 2000.

"This phenomenon of declining enrollment doesn't seem to continue indefinitely," said Gilbert, but he added the study shows there is a "10-year period where we can easily accommodate the enrollment of the district in less than eight schools."

BOARD MEMBER Arthur Aronson asked whether Harper College, with its expanding enrollment, would be interested in using Dist. 214's facilities.

Dist. 214 administrators questioned whether the college could use a Dist. 214 campus since parking space is limited. The college requires a large amount of parking since most of its students commute by car.

Terry Schott of Arlington Heights asked the board if it "deliberately withheld" its enrollment report until after voters approved a second campus for Harper College in a referendum Sept. 27. "Didn't you feel it was your place to contact Harper?"

about possible use of a Dist. 214 school as a second campus? Mrs. Schott asked.

"That would have been a little presumptuous on our part," said Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko. Gilbert said there was no connection between the enrollment report and the referendum. "It would be hard for me to conceive that that would have changed their course of action," he said.

Bongi gets Lake-Cook Road contract

The County Board Monday awarded a $3.5 million contract to Bongi Cartage Inc., Cicero, for the Lake-Cook Road extension project.

The project will extend the highway west from Milwaukee Avenue to McHenry Road, a distance of about three miles. Lake-Cook Road currently exists only east of Milwaukee Avenue.

Francine Stuart, a spokesman for the county highway department, said the four-lane, divided highway would include left-turn lanes at McHenry Road, Wieland Road, Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue.

THE CONTRACT also calls for an overpass to be built at the Soo Line R.R. tracks west of Milwaukee Ave. Underground storm sewers, traffic signals, striping and painting also are part of the project.

Miss Stuart said work on the extension will not begin until after a preconstruction conference is held between the contractor and county highway officials. A work schedule for the project will be determined at the conference, which Miss Stuart said may take place next week.

County officials are anxious for the extension work to begin and Miss Stuart said the project will get under way as soon as possible after the preconstruction conference.

Apartment zoning request referred to planning unit

A request for an extension of zoning for a proposed apartment development was referred by the Wheeling Village Board Monday night to the village plan commission for review.

In a 5-1 vote, the board directed the plan commission to hold hearings on the request from developer Charles Petrungaro to determine if the extension should be granted. Trustee Charles Kerr voted against the motion.

Multi-family zoning on the site at 628 N. McHenry Rd. expired in July, but Petrungaro in April had applied for an eight-month extension. The board gave preliminary approval to the request in April, but when four new trustees assumed office in May, the matter was tabled.

Village Atty. John Burke advised the board to take action on the request to avoid any legal questions about the matter. He said because the matter had been tabled the expiration

REV. AND MRS. JAMES Martin of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, recently returned from a month-long tour of world missions for the United Presbyterian Church. Their travels included stops in Korea, Bangkok, Singapore and Japan.

Area pastor tours world

by LINDA PUNCH

The fate of millions of people overseas rests on the shoulders of the Rev. James Martin of Arlington Heights.

Rev. Martin, pastor of the first Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, was one of two ministers selected to tour the world mission stations of the United Presbyterian Church. His job was to report on the current state of the missions and to make recommendations for future funding of the program.

"For the past few years, there's been talk about a moratorium on sending people overseas so each country could develop its own resources. Now, I think there's going to be a switch," he said.

The Rev. Martin's trip took him to missions in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Singapore, Bangkok and Kenya. He is convinced the church must increase support of the missions rather than cut back.

"IN SOUTHERN INDIA, we closed a hospital that ministered to a million people because we couldn't afford a doctor. It only would have cost $3,600 a year. It's a tragic thing to see that kind of withdrawal," the Rev. Martin said.

The Rev. Martin said the number of missionaries has been cut back from 1,400 to 500 in the past 10 years because of the lack of money.

"There are people lining up to go overseas but the church doesn't have the funds," he said.

Mrs. Martin, who accompanied her husband on the trip, said lack of money also causes hardship for families of missionaries.

"THE MISSIONARIES are responsible for educating their own children through the second grade. After that, they often have to send them away to a boarding school. This is very much of a hardship on the family," she said.

The Rev. Martin said the church loses many missionaries when children reach college age.

"One of our best interpreters must come back to the United States after 27 years in order to support his children in college. It's tragic to lose that kind of expertise, but they haven't enough money to continue," he said.

The interest in Christianity continues to grow in the Southeast Asian countries despite recent waves of anti-Americanism, the Rev. Martin said.

He cites South Korea, where Pres. Park Chung Hee has cracked down on clergy, as an example.

"While we were in Korea, we were kept under constant surveillance by the Korean CIA. Our hotel room was bugged and our papers searched everytime we went out. When we met with clergy to be briefed on the condition of the Korean Church we had to meet in a private home because the missionaries' office was bugged," he said.

DESPITE THE ACTIONS of the Korean government, the Rev. Martin

terms the Korean church "the most vital in the world." He said the Koreans have established a goal of 300 new churches a year for the next decade, "and they've just about made it for this year."

The Rev. Martin said he also was pleased with the cooperation among overseas churches. He said in many countries there are no Protestant or Catholic churches, only the Church of Christ.

"We work ecumenically overseas in ways we never dream of here," he said.

Scouts 'Heritage '76' aims for local history research

The Moraine Girl Scout Council has planned a "Heritage '76" program designed to make Scouts more aware of the history of the area.

The three-part program, which began last year, is the Bicentennial project for scouts from Buffalo Grove, Prairie View, Northbrook, Mundelein, Half Day, Deerfield, Highland Park, Highwood, Fort Sheridan, Lake Forest, Lincolnshire and Lake Bluff.

Last year Scouts researched information about people and places which have contributed to the history of the Moraine Council area.

The girls talked to senior citizens about the "old days" in their communities and visited historical buildings and landmarks.

THIS YEAR THE Girl Scouts are compiling information on historical sites. The information is published in periodic newsletters the girls write and distribute.

The Moraine Council program committee will begin choosing the most interesting historical sites for a brochure to be distributed throughout the area. The 52-page brochure will include walking tours, bike tours, car trips for individuals, families and groups to familiarize themselves with the North and Northwest suburban area.

IN ADDITION to the descriptions of historical sites, the brochure also will feature dozens of photographs of the sites taken by scouts. It is expected to be finished in March.

Most of the Moraine Council Scouts are earning components of a specially designed "Heritage '76" badge in the shape of the State of Illinois. The three parts, red, white and blue, stand for the scout's three years of Bicentennial participation.

Apartment zoning bid to plan unit

PETRUNGARO DID not attend the meeting, but Village Mgr. George Passolt said the developer had been advised the matter would be on the agenda.

The land was rezoned from single family to multi-family in 1973, but construction did not begin because Petrungaro still was seeking financing.

A village ordinance declares that rezonings on properties shall expire after two years if construction has not begun.

Petrungaro plans to build a two-story, 80-unit apartment project on the site.

The developer recently said he never received a reply from the village when he requested building permits in June, though building director Roger Repholz told the developer plans for the project were inadequate.

PETRUNGARO HAS said he is still interested in developing the site if he can get the extension.

The plan commission will determine whether circumstances still allow rezoning for multi-family housing.

In a letter to Passolt, Burke said zoning on the property technically has expired because the deadline for extensions has passed.

Action starts to rebuild history unit

Efforts are under way to revitalize the Buffalo Grove Historical Society and collect historical items to be placed on exhibit at the Raupp Memorial Building, Raupp Park.

Park District Comr. Dede Armstrong said Monday she is seeking volunteers to help her get the program off the ground. She hopes to begin regular meetings of the organization and collect items of historical significance to Buffalo Grove, as well as record tapes on the history of the village.

"The village has some fantastic history," said Mrs. Armstrong, wife of former village president Gary Armstrong. "But we need volunteers who are interested in helping."

MRS. ARMSTRONG became involved in giving the historical society a boost when two of the three officers of the organization moved away from the village.

"We're trying to get it started again because the historical society's really at a standstill," she said. "Now that we've got a building we can use, it would be good to get something started again."

Mrs. Armstrong said she's already received one donation. Blanche Kloeckman has offered to donate a Clydesdale horse harness and a milk wagon from her farm north of the village. More donations may be on the way if the group can interest other long-time residents to share their historical heritage.

"I've also conducted an interview with members of the Raupp family (among the first settlers of Buffalo Grove) on tape," she said. "The stories they've got to tell are fascinating. At first, they said they had nothing to tell us, but when they got started, they really had a lot to say."

A TAPING SESSION with members of the Weidner family is also planned. Mrs. Armstrong said the tapes will provide an interesting insight into past village history, particularly for school children.

Although plans are not definite, Mrs. Armstrong said she would like to see historical items displayed in the Raupp Memorial Building donated recently to the park district by Levitt and Sons Inc., builders of the Strathmore subdivision.

Those wishing to volunteer for historical society work are urged to call Mrs. Armstrong, 537-7346.

Woodmen to honor building inspector

Camp 1335 of Modern Woodmen of America will honor Buffalo Grove Building Inspector William A. Dettmer at a meeting Saturday at Longfellow School, 501 Arlington Heights Rd.

The meeting will begin at 3 p.m. Dettmer will receive special recognition for leadership and involvement in the community.

All Modern Woodmen members, their families and friends are invited to the meeting. Reservations are not needed.

November is "Community Service Recognition Month" for the fraternal insurance society.

Free check planned for blood pressure

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club will conduct a blood pressure check from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the Wheeling Municipal Building, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

The check is being conducted in cooperation with the Heart Assn. of North Cook County and is free to the public. Those wishing further information should call 541-2065.

Parks Feminique signups end Monday

Registration for the Wheeling Park District's next monthly Feminique program is being accepted through Monday at the park district office, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

The program this month is a trip to the Shady Lane Farm Playhouse, Nov. 12 for a showing of the play "Right Bed, Wrong Husband." Cost per person is $7.50 which includes dinner, transportation and tickets for the play.

For more information call the park district at 537-2222.

Library meeting reset

The Indian Trails Public Library Board has rescheduled its Nov. 26 meeting to Nov. 19.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

Radios, speakers stolen from trucks

A two-way radio and a pair of microphones valued at $550 were stolen when thieves entered three unlocked Buffalo Grove public works vehicles, police said Monday.

The theft was discovered Monday morning, but police said the equipment could have been stolen between Friday and Sunday.

Five honey locust trees recently were planted on the grounds at Riley School, Arlington Heights, as a Bicentennial project to beautify the area.

Cooperating in the project were the Riley School PTA, Northgate Civic Assn., Boy Scout Troop 119, Cub Pack 119, Girl Scout Troops 474, 689 and 633, Brownie Troops 653 and 701, and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School Dist. 21.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

A boot and skate sale will be held Friday and Saturday at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights. Sale times are Friday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday 9 to 11 a.m. The sale, sponsored by the parent organization, will be in the gym.

High School Dist. 214

Harold Shane, former dean of the school of education at Indiana University and author of "The Educational Significance of the Future," will speak at High School Dist. 214's institute program, Friday, beginning at 9 a.m. at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd.

The institute is sponsored by Dist. 214 in cooperation with the Cook County Educational Service Region. The public is invited to attend.

At the morning program Shane will tell why educators must give serious consideration to the future. In a second address, Shane will discuss alternatives that teachers and administrators might consider when modifying curriculum for the future.

Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year. "If we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced formation of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Martenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice (Continued on Sect. 3, Page 1)

Rocky's pullout from '76 race 'his idea': Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nease said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Dist. 214 rolls decline 'not indefinite'

'No school closures until 1980'

The closing of a high school may not take place in High School Dist. 214 until 1980.

In reviewing enrollment figures showing a steady decline in students through the 1983-84 school year, the Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday it will be 1980 before enrollment will drop enough to warrant the closing of a high school.

Several board members reported that rumors are circulating in the community that the board has already decided to close a school. Supt. Edward Gilbert said the rumors are untrue.

He said the board is considering all possible solutions to the declining enrollment problem, and the board's "discussion is not based on a decision that we're going to close one or more schools."

BOARD MEMBER Donald Hoeck commented, "We're still just talking. The wrecking crane is not being ordered to any of our eight sites."

The board did review criteria that could be used to determine which school would be closed if the board decides the closing of a school is necessary. The criteria include the location of the school, physical characteristics of the building, cost factors and transportation considerations.

Enrollment is projected to drop 22 per cent in eight years from a high this year of 19,823 students to 15,460 students in 1983. Enrollment in 1980 is projected at 17,015 students. Gilbert said it is only then that Dist. 214 could house all its students in seven buildings.

The board studied school enrollment figures prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for Lake, Cook, DuPage, Kane, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana. The figures show high school enrollment reaches a peak in 1980, drops to a low in 1990 and rises again until the year 2000.

"This phenomenon of declining enrollment doesn't seem to continue indefinitely," said Gilbert, but he added the study shows there is a "10-year period where we can easily accommodate the enrollment of the district in less than eight schools."

BOARD MEMBER Arthur Aronson asked whether Harper College, with its expanding enrollment, would be interested in using Dist. 214's facilities.

Dist. 214 administrators questioned whether the college could use a Dist. 214 campus since parking space is limited. The college requires a large amount of parking since most of its students commute by car.

Terry Schott of Arlington Heights asked the board if it "deliberately withheld" its enrollment report until after voters approved a second campus for Harper College in a referendum.

Volunteers sought for history society

Efforts are under way to revitalize the Buffalo Grove Historical Society, and collect historical items to be placed on exhibit at the Raupp Memorial Building, Raupp Park.

Park District Comr. Dede Armstrong said Monday she is seeking volunteers to help her get the program off the ground. She hopes to begin regular meetings of the organization and collect items of historical significance to Buffalo Grove, as well as record tapes on the history of the village.

"The village has some fantastic history," said Mrs. Armstrong, wife of former village president Gary Armstrong. "But we need volunteers who are interested in helping."

MRS. ARMSTRONG became involved in giving the historical society a boost when two of the three officers of the organization moved away from the village.

"We're trying to get it started again because the historical society's really at a standstill," she said. "Now that we've got a building we can use, it would be good to get something started again." Mrs. Armstrong said she's already received one donation. Blanche Kloeckman has offered to donate a Clydesdale horse harness and a milk wagon from her farm north of the village. More donations may be on the way if the group can interest other long-time residents to share their historical heritage.

Lake-Cook Road contract awarded

The County Board Monday awarded a $5.5 million contract to Bong Carriage Inc., Cicero, for the Lake-Cook Road extension project.

The project will extend the highway west from Milwaukee Avenue to McHenry Road, a distance of about three miles. Lake-Cook Road currently exists only east of Milwaukee Avenue.

Francine Stuart, a spokesman for the county highway department, said the four-lane, divided highway would include left-turn lanes at McHenry Road, Wieland Road, Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue.

THE CONTRACT also calls for an overpass to be built at the Soo Line R.R. tracks west of Milwaukee Ave. Underground storm sewers, traffic signals, striping and painting also are part of the project.

Miss Stuart said work on the extension will not begin until after a pre-construction conference is held between the contractor and county highway officials. A work schedule for the project will be determined at the conference, which Miss Stuart said may take place next week.

County officials are anxious for the extension work to begin and Miss Stuart said the project will get under way as soon as possible after the pre-construction conference.

When this portion of the project is completed bids will be let for the next part of the Lake-Cook Road improvement project, which calls for the road to be extended west of McHenry Road into Buffalo Grove.

Kissinger on top after Ford shuffle

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he fired Defense Sec. James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby because "I wanted a team that was my team," and declared Henry A. Kissinger will play a dominant role in U.S. foreign policy.

FORD CONFIRMED he was nominating White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld — who served 6½ years as Republican congressman from Chicago's Northwest suburbs—to succeed Schlesinger at the Pentagon, and Ambassador George Bush, chief of U.S. liaison office in Peking to become CIA director.

"These are my guys, and the ones I wanted," Ford said.

"I did it totally on my own. I put the pieces together and they fit excellently. It was my decision."

Ford also disclosed he was recalling Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson from London to succeed Rogers C. B. Morton as commerce secretary.

At a White House news conference following 24 hours of high-level changes in his administration — including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's abrupt announcement he would not be Ford's running mate in 1976 — the President denied that any "personal or policy differences" were involved in his decision to dismiss Schlesinger and Colby.

Throughout the half-hour meeting with reporters, the President sought vigorously to dismiss repeated speculation among Kissinger's critics in Congress that Ford had thrown his weight behind the secretary of state and against Schlesinger in a major administration power struggle over detente with the Soviet Union.

Ford conceded, however, that Kissinger would continue to "have the dominant role in formulating and carrying out (Continued on Sect. 3, Page 1)

REV. AND MRS. JAMES Martin of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, recently returned from a month-long tour of world missions for the United Presbyterian Church. Their travels included stops in Korea, Bangkok, Singapore and Japan.

Area pastor tours world

by LINDA PUNCH

The fate of millions of people overseas rests on the shoulders of the Rev. James Martin of Arlington Heights.

Rev. Martin, pastor of the first Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, was one of two ministers selected to tour the world mission stations of the United Presbyterian Church. His job was to report on the current state of the missions and to make recommendations for future funding of the program.

"For the past few years, there's been talk about a moratorium on sending people overseas so each country could develop its own resources. Now, I think there's going to be a switch," he said.

The Rev. Martin's trip took him to missions in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Singapore, Bangkok and Kenya. He is convinced the church must increase support of the missions rather than cut back.

"IN SOUTHERN INDIA, we closed a hospital that ministered to a million people because we couldn't afford a doctor. It only would have cost $2,600 a year. It's a tragic thing to see that kind of withdrawal," the Rev. Martin said.

The Rev. Martin said the number of missionaries has been cut back from 1,400 to 500 in the past 10 years because of the lack of money.

"There are people lining up to go overseas but the church doesn't have the funds," he said.

Mrs. Martin, who accompanied her husband on the trip, said lack of money also causes hardship for families of missionaries.

"THE MISSIONARIES are responsible for educating their own children through the second grade. After that, they often have to send them away to a boarding school. This is very much of a hardship on the family," she said.

The Rev. Martin said the church loses many missionaries when children reach college age.

"One of our best interpreters must come back to the United States after 27 years in order to support his children in college. It's tragic to lose that kind of expertise, but they haven't enough money to continue," he said.

The interest in Christianity continues to grow in the Southeast Asian countries despite recent waves of anti-Americanism, the Rev. Martin said.

He cites South Korea, where Pres. Park Chung Hee has cracked down on clergy, as an example.

"While we were in Korea, we were kept under constant surveillance by the Korean CIA. Our hotel room was bugged and our papers searched everytime we went out. When we met with clergy to be briefed on the condition of the Korean Church we had to meet in a private home because the missionaries' office was bugged," he said.

DESPITE THE ACTIONS of the Korean government, the Rev. Martin

terms the Korean church "the most vital in the world." He said the Koreans have established a goal of 300 new churches a year for the next decade, "and they've just about made it for this year."

The Rev. Martin said he also was pleased with the cooperation among overseas churches. He said in many countries there are no Protestant or Catholic churches, only the Church of Christ.

"We work ecumenically overseas in ways we never dream of here," he said.

Scouts 'Heritage '76' aims for local history research

The Moraine Girl Scout Council has planned a "Heritage '76" program designed to make Scouts more aware of the history of the area.

The three-part program, which began last year, is the Bicentennial project for scouts from Buffalo Grove, Prairie View, Northbrook, Mundelein, Half Day, Deerfield, Highland Park, Highwood, Fort Sheridan, Lake Forest, Lincolnshire and Lake Bluff.

Last year Scouts researched information about people and places which have contributed to the history of the Moraine Council area.

The girls talked to senior citizens about the "old days" in their communities and visited historical buildings and landmarks.

THIS YEAR THE Girl Scouts are compiling information on historical sites. The information is published in periodic newsletters the girls write and distribute.

The Moraine Council program committee will begin choosing the most interesting historical sites for a brochure to be distributed throughout the area. The 52-page brochure will include walking tours, bike tours, car trips for individuals, families and groups to familiarize themselves with the North and Northwest suburban area.

IN ADDITION to the descriptions of historical sites, the brochure also will feature dozens of photographs of the sites taken by scouts. It is expected to be finished in March.

Most of the Moraine Council Scouts are earning components of a specially designed "Heritage '76" badge in the shape of the State of Illinois. The three parts, red, white and blue, stand for the scout's three years of Bicentennial participation.

Fiscal study group seeks members

Residents of Buffalo Grove — Long Grove Dist. 96 are being sought for membership on a fiscal study committee formed by the board of education last month.

The committee will have its first meeting Nov. 12 to begin its study of the district's financial situation. It will review income and expenditure projections in the district's budget, study the need for an increase in the tax rate, set priorities for educational programs, and consider the opening of Kildeer School, which has been remodeled for classroom use. The committee is scheduled to conclude its work in February.

The 16-member committee consists of Dist. 96 administrators, board members and teachers as well as six members from the community. Only three members of the community have been appointed and the administration is seeking volunteers for the remaining three vacancies.

Residents interested in serving on the committee should contact Supt. William Hitzemann at the Dist. 96 office, 634-3074.

Free check planned for blood pressure

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club will conduct a blood pressure check from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the Wheeling Municipal Building, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

The check is being conducted in cooperation with the Heart Assn. of North Cook County and is free to the public. Those wishing further information should call 541-2065.

Panel sets inquiry on 'Cove' status

Members of the Arlington Heights village administration will be called Nov. 10 before a village board committee trying to determine the legal status of Frenchmen's Cove residential development.

28-page report prepared by Trustee board, meeting this week was given a The legal committee of the village Alice Harms detailing the village's official actions on the development of apartments and single-family housing near Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

Mrs. Harms and Trustee David Griffin, chairman of the committee, said the report shows the subdivision was never approved by the village board as required by state law and village ordinance. However, a final plat of subdivision was filed with the Cook County recorder with the necessary signatures of village officials.

GRIFFIN SAID members of the village administration involved in the development will have to appear before the committee. John Best, village planning engineer; Alan J. Sander, director of engineering; and Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel will be called, Griffin said.

Mrs. Harms' report outlined eight questions about the development and whether the developer Edward Schwartz lived up to his agreement and plans filed with the village.

Schwartz said the questions being raised by the report were purely administrative problems within the village. He said he has a signed final plat and if the village records do not indicate approval being granted, the records are in error.

GRIFFIN REITERATED the need for Best and Sander to appear in the open hearing "to get out the true facts." He said Siegel's appearance was necessary to get his opinion on whether Frenchmen's Cove is a legal subdivision and what the legal implications could be if it is not.

Schwartz' attorney, Lawrence Freedman, said the hearings were dealing with internal matters of the village and that Frenchmen's Cove was being singled out in the examination.

Parks Feminique signups end Monday

Registration for the Wheeling Park District's next monthly Feminique program is being accepted through Monday at the park district office, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

The program this month is a trip to the Shady Lane Farm Playhouse, Nov. 12 for a showing of the play "Right Bed, Wrong Husband." Cost per person is $7.50 which includes dinner, transportation and tickets for the play.

For more information call the park district at 537-2222.

Library meeting reset

The Indian Trails Public Library Board has rescheduled its Nov. 26 meeting to Nov. 19.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

1973 survey not implemented

Dist. 59 OKs unit district study

A resolution to reopen the study of a unit school district for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 was unanimously approved by the Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night.

Board member Emil Bahnmaier proposed that a unit district study committee drawn from all members of the community be reestablished. A study on the unit district was done in 1973, but it was decided not to implement the concept.

A unit district would have one administration and board of education governing the elementary and high school. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten to eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

BAHNMAIER SAID there was "definite interest" in the unit district on the part of the community and that the board would remiss in its duty if it did not reopen the study.

"I think the entire study should be reviewed," he said. "The financial picture has changed quite a bit as has the population of the district. The educational impact should also be reviewed."

District resident Joseph Stecker, Mount Prospect, suggested the committee should determine how a unit district would be affected if Dist. 59 had to close some school due to lack of enrollment. Board Pres. Judith Zanca said it was "premature" to consider closing schools. She said a school's enrollment would have to drop to less than 150 students to consider closing it. The smallest school enrollment in the district is about 240.

BAHNMAIER SAID High School Dist. 214, which will likely close one or two high schools in the next 10 years, will probably oppose the unit district because part of its tax base would be removed. He said, however, that the economic impact on Dist. 214 would not be as severe as in 1973 now that the state

6 polluters found in Oakton survey

Tests of sewers in the Oakton Industrial Park have found six firms that are polluting the system, Elk Grove Township officials said Monday night.

Action against the six firms, whose names were not released, is being prepared. In all six cases, excess grease had been dumped into the township's sanitary sewer system.

The township recently put terry-cloth traps into 28 inspection sewers within the industrial park, which lies on both sides of Oakton Street between Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway. Eight of the traps were sent for lab analysis.

TOWNSHIP SECRETARY Nita Stamm said six of the eight traps tested showed higher grease amounts than permitted under township ordinances. The limit is 100 milligrams per liter. She said in two instances the counts were 817 and 413 milligrams per liter.

Also tested were the acid levels in each sewer. Of the eight traps tested, all were under the 10.0 limit, but two were close to the limit, being 9.2 and 9.1.

Mrs. Stamm said further tests were being conducted at the six locations and that the Metropolitan Sanitary District is being contacted about the proper procedures the township should use against the polluters.

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said action, including any necessary legal remedies, will be taken against the polluters as soon as possible. He said the names will not be released until the firms have been notified by letter of their violations.

Such letters could go out as early as next week, officials said.

"I THINK WE should grab the worst one and nab him. Hang him on his own putridness," said Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee. "We should lean and lean hard on him."

The township last August passed an ordinance empowering itself to levy fines up to $100 per day for violations. It also can bring legal action and curtail sewer services. The ordinance was passed so that the township would not have to rely on the MSD for enforcement.

Through discoloration of the terry-cloth traps or the presence of pollution odors picked up by the cloths, township officials have a quick indication of a pollution violation.

In a related matter, the MSD has said it is satisfied with sewer repair work in the Higgins Industrial Park and a previous violation notice against the township will not be pursued. Inspections for illegal connections into the sanitary sewer system will follow, as required by a current MSD program.

Several board members reported that rumors are circulating in the community that the board has already decided to close a school. Supt. Ed-

President Ford said Monday night he fired Defense Sec. James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby because "I wanted a team that was my team," and declared Henry A. Kissinger will play a dominant role in U.S. foreign policy.

FORD CONFIRMED he was nominating White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld — who served 6½ years as Republican congressman from Chicago's Northwest suburbs — to succeed Schlesinger at the Pentagon, and Ambassador George Bush, chief of U.S. liaison office in Peking to become CIA director.

"These are my guys, and the ones I wanted," Ford said.

"I did it totally on my own. I put the pieces together and they fit excellently. It was my decision."

Ford also disclosed he was recalling Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson from London to succeed Rogers C. B. Morton as commerce secretary.

At a White House news conference following 24 hours of high-level changes in his administration — including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's abrupt announcement he would not be Ford's running mate in 1976 — the President denied that any "personal or policy differences" were involved in his decision to dismiss Schlesinger and Colby.

Throughout the half-hour meeting with reporters, the President sought vigorously to dismiss repeated speculation among Kissinger's critics in Congress that Ford had thrown his weight behind the secretary of state and against Schlesinger in a major administration power struggle over detente with the Soviet Union.

Ford conceded, however, that Kissinger would continue to "have the dominant role in formulating and carrying out" foreign policy.

Businessmen support unit school proposal

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township businessmen overwhelmingly support a unit school district study for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area.

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce polled its members to see if they would support formation of a unit district. The results of the poll were released Monday with 160 members voting for and eight against a unit district. About 25 per cent of the association's members answered the petition.

A unit school district would have one administration and school board governing elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten through eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 attendance area.

E. STANLEY KLYBER, executive vice president of the association, said the association "will try to work with a community group to develop the procedures for applying for a unit school district. We'll try to form not only a businessmen's committee but also a citizens' committee."

He said the association will discuss the results of the poll at its Nov. 25 meeting and will decide what actions to take at that time.

The ballot distributed to the members included a petition supporting a unit district. The petition was put together by the association's investigation committee headed by Timothy Frisby, a director of the association.

The committee, which included businessmen and residents of Dist. 59, reviewed the 1973 unit district study conducted by Dist. 59 and met with Dist. 59 board members and administrators during the summer.

THE 1973 STUDY investigated three plans for unit district consolidation. The committee rejected these plans in 1973 but recommended that a study be conducted later.

Frisby's group strongly urged support for a unit district stating the benefits of a unit district are "substantial in terms of economics as well as the potential for improvement in the quality of education."

Some of the benefits listed by the committee included:

- All local taxes and state aid would be used to educate students in Elk Grove Township. Currently Elk Grove Township residents pay school taxes to Dist. 214 which also serves Wheeling Township.
- A single administration and school board would "provide for more efficient administration and greater utilization of facilities and people."
- Full representation of the area on the school board. There is currently one representative from the Dist. 59 area on the Dist. 214 school board.
- Improved communication between the grade schools and high school for educational programs.

'Choral Capers' Wednesday at Elk Grove High

Choral Capers "Spirit of '76," saluting the Bicentennial, will be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday by Elk Grove High School students in the school's theater, Arlington Heights Road at Elk Grove Boulevard.

The production will represent political, social and economic highlights of America in the last 200 years. This year's format makes use of lighting effects, narration, chorography and choreography by the Orchestral dance group. The school's Jazz Combo II will accompany the choruses and will be featured in some original Dixieland music.

Members of the orchestra will join the combined choruses for a "testament of an American" presentation written by Max Winkler and set to music by Alfred Reed.

Performing groups include the concert choir, girls glee club, girls chorus, the "New Horizons" swing choir, "Les Chanteuses" girls ensemble and "The Moonlighters" barbershop quartet. Soloists are Tom O'Bannon, Karen Leksander, Todd Jackson, Mike Logue and Ann Haich.

Helping others is his mission

by LINDA PUNCH

The fate of millions of people overseas rests on the shoulders of the Rev. James Martin of Arlington Heights.

Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, was one of two ministers selected to tour the world mission stations of the United Presbyterian Church. His job was to report on the current state of the missions and to make recommendations for future funding of the program.

"For the past few years, there's been talk about a moratorium on sending people overseas so each country could develop its own resources. Now, I think there's going to be a switch," he said.

The Rev. Martin's trip took him to missions in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Singapore, Bangkok and Kenya. He is convinced the church must increase support of the missions rather than cut back.

"IN SOUTHERN INDIA, we closed a hospital that ministered to a million people because we couldn't afford a doctor. It only would have cost $3,600 a year. It's a tragic thing to see that kind of withdrawal," the Rev. Martin said.

The Rev. Martin said the number of missionaries has been cut back from 1,400 to 500 in the past 10 years because of the lack of money.

"There are people lining up to go overseas but the church doesn't have the funds," he said.

Mrs. Martin, who accompanied her husband on the trip, said lack of money also causes hardship for families of missionaries.

"THE MISSIONARIES are responsible for educating their own children through the second grade. After that, they often have to send them away to a boarding school. This is very much of a hardship on the family," she said.

The Rev. Martin said the church loses many missionaries when children reach college age.

"One of our best interpreters must come back to the United States after 27 years in order to support his children in college. It's tragic to lose that kind of expertise, but they haven't enough money to continue," he said.

The interest in Christianity continues to grow in the Southeast Asian countries despite recent waves of anti-Americanism, the Rev. Martin said. He cites South Korea, where Pres. Park Chung Hee has cracked down on clergy, as an example.

"While we were in Korea, we were kept under constant surveillance by the Korean CIA. Our hotel room was bugged and our papers searched everytime we went out. When we met with clergy to be briefed on the condition of the Korean Church we had to meet in a private home because the missionaries' office was bugged," he said.

DESPITE THE ACTIONS of the Korean government, the Rev. Martin terms the Korean church "the most vital in the world." He said the Koreans have established a goal of 300 new churches a year for the next decade, "and they've just about made it for this year."

The Rev. Martin said he also was pleased with the cooperation among overseas churches. He said in many countries there are no Protestant or Catholic churches, only the Church of Christ.

"We work ecumenically overseas in ways we never dream of here," he said.

Members sought for marching band

Northwest Patrol, Elk Grove Village's new marching band, is looking for members.

Children, ages 10 to 15, who play a band instrument or want to learn to play, are invited to join. Children who would like to march with the color guard or rifle section are also invited to join.

Children may join by either attending practice, Wednesdays from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. at Grove Junior High School, 777 Elk Grove Blvd., or by calling 439-4156.

Activities planned for the group include a Christmas concert at the Randhurst Shopping Center, PTA Christmas programs and Christmas parades.

could be used to determine which school would be closed if the board decides the closing of a school is necessary. The criteria include the location of the school, physical characteristics of the building, cost factors and transportation considerations.

Enrollment is projected to drop 22 per cent in eight years from a high this year of 19,823 students to 15,460 students in 1983. Enrollment in 1980 is projected at 17,015 students. Gilbert said it is only then that Dist. 214 could house all its students in seven buildings.

The board studied school enrollment figures prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for Lake, Cook, DuPage, Kane, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana. The figures show high school enrollment reaches a peak in 1980, drops to a low in 1990 and rises again until the year 2000.

"This phenomenon of declining enrollment doesn't seem to continue indefinitely," said Gilbert, but he added the study shows there is a "10-year period where we can easily accommodate the enrollment of the district in less than eight schools."

BOARD MEMBER Arthur Aronson asked whether Harper College, with its expanding enrollment, would be interested in using Dist. 214's facilities.

Dist. 214 administrators questioned whether the college could use a Dist. 214 campus since parking space is limited. The college requires a large amount of parking since most of its students commute by car.

Terry Schott of Arlington Heights asked the board if it "deliberately withheld" its enrollment report until after voters approved a second campus for Harper College in a referendum.

Sept. 27. "Didn't you feel it was your place to contact Harper" about possible use of a Dist. 214 school as a second campus? Mrs. Schott asked.

"That would have been a little presumptuous on our part," said Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko. Gilbert said there was no connection between the enrollment report and the referendum. "It would be hard for me to conceive that that would have changed their course of action," he said.

Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year. "If we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced formation of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Martenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice

Rocky's pullout from '76 race 'his idea': Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

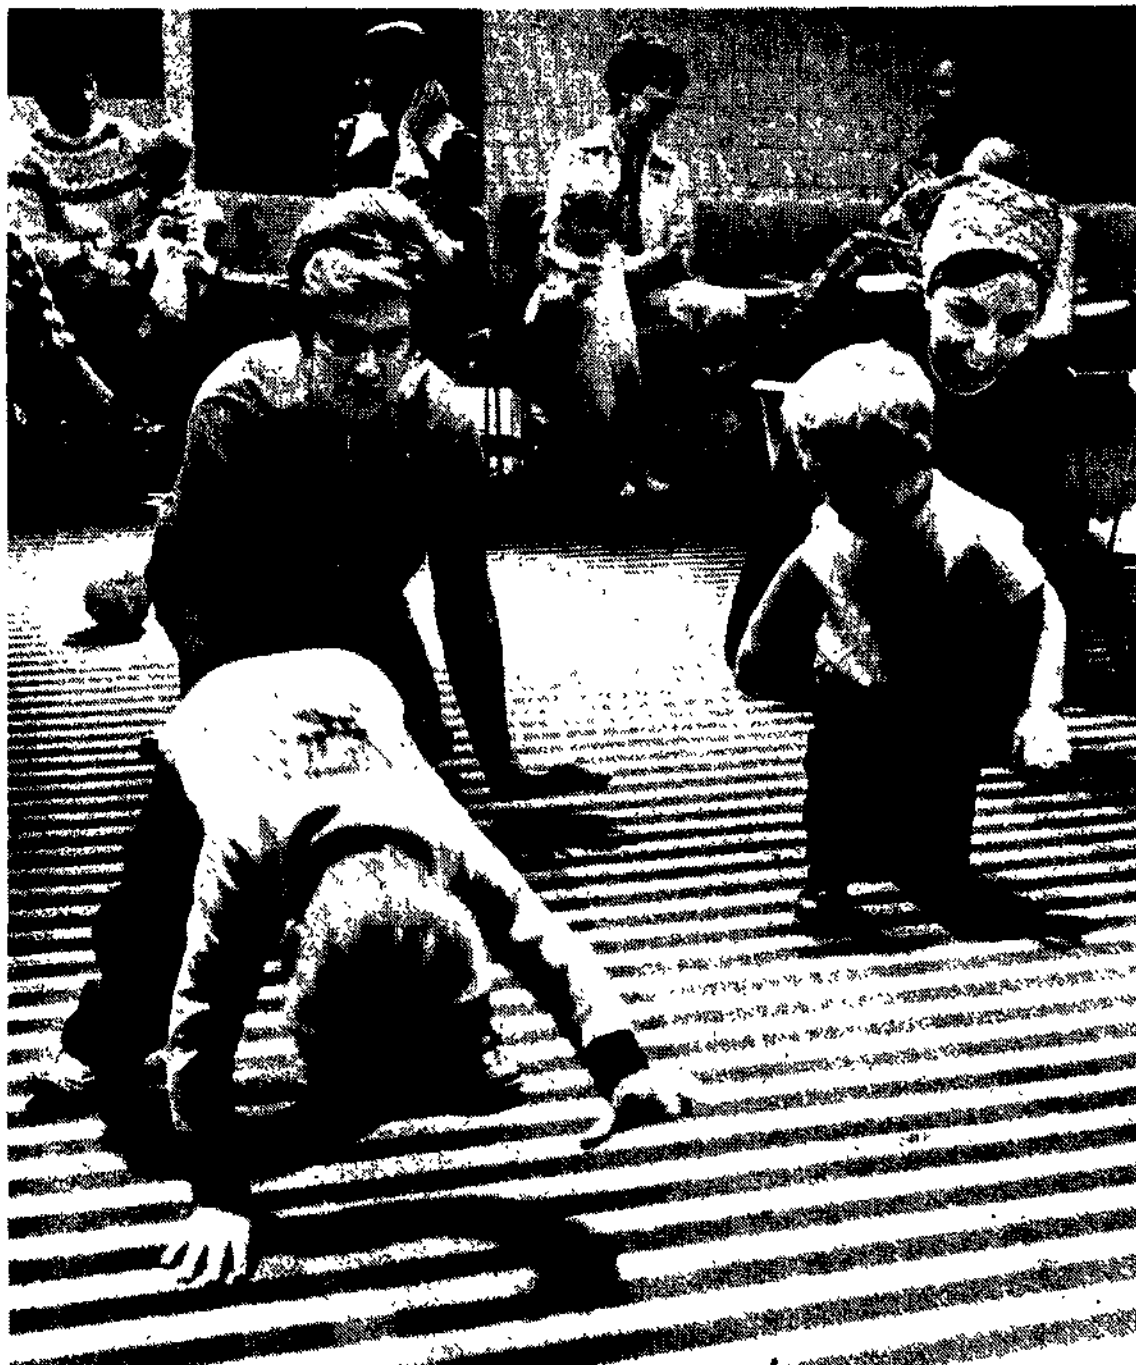

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Despite residents' complaints

Parkway walk rule reaffirmed

The Hoffman Estates Village Board Monday night reaffirmed its policy to install parkway sidewalks in the village despite some residents' complaints they do not want the parkways.

Their stand came during a one-hour discussion when a resident voiced his objections and those of some of his neighbors to plans for parkway sidewalks on Glendale Lane.

Stanley Przybylski, 177 Mohave St., told the board he and his neighbors do not want the village to replace carriage walks, which are next to the street, with the conventional sidewalk.

THE VILLAGE adopted an ordinance more than a year ago banning further construction of carriage walks because trustees say their location near streets is unsafe.

The carriage walks were permitted by the county before the village was incorporated.

Przybylski appeared before trustees on the public health and safety committee last week to protest the new sidewalks which he said residents first learned were to be installed when staking out the sidewalks were posted Oct. 24. Three residents appeared Monday night in support of the village's plan.

Przybylski said he may consult an attorney to file suit against the village and stop construction, although Village Atty. Edward Hofert Monday said the village has the authority to place sidewalks wherever it chooses on the public right-of-way.

THE GLENDALE residents do not want the sidewalks because they will cost $3.37 per foot more than carriage walks and because they will not be constructed in a straight line because fences and trees block the right of way, Przybylski said.

The village will pay for the sidewalk work with federal revenue sharing money.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said the issue involves "public safety" rather than money. "We have a responsibility to pedestrians as well as homeowners. The decision was made that safety is worth something," she said.

The Glendale Lane work is part of major village sidewalk improvement being planned for all areas of the village. Revenue-sharing funds are being used for initial phases of the work, but officials have said a major bond referendum may be planned within two years to pay for the estimated $1.5 million sidewalk project.

Driver killed as auto, truck collide

A 33-year-old Schaumburg man was killed Monday morning when his small foreign car went out of control, and crashed into a pickup truck at Higgins and Ash roads in Hoffman Estates.

Pat Ramesh-Reddy, 416 N. Alden Ln., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. The driver of the pickup truck, Dennis Kohn, 19, of 954 W. Babcock Dr., Palatine, was released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Sgt. Ron Sperandio of the Hoffman Estates traffic division said Ramesh-Reddy, an accountant for Kaufman and Broad, was apparently going to work when the mishap occurred about 8:45 a.m.

Ramesh-Reddy's Volkswagen was northbound on Aztec Street when it went out of control, struck a concrete median strip on Higgins Road and flew into the air, Sperandio said.

The car spun around, and as it was coming down struck the pickup truck, westbound on Higgins Road, police said. The truck ended up in a ditch and the car on the road shoulder.

Firefighters had to pry the car apart to free the body from the wreckage.

Stereo, jewels taken in apartment thefts

Schaumburg police are investigating two daytime burglaries Monday at International Village Apartments, Algonquin and Meacham roads.

Robert Jones, 1224 E. Algonquin Rd., told police burglars stole about $1,450 worth of stereo equipment from his first-floor apartment.

Susan Corrado, also of 1224 E. Algonquin, reported about $480 worth of jewelry was taken from her third-floor apartment.

Both burglaries occurred sometime during the day and were discovered when the victims returned home from work. Entry to both apartments was gained by prying open front doors, police said.

Firefighters submit pact proposal

The Hoffman Estates Professional Firefighters Assn. Local 2061 has submitted a contract proposal to village officials.

Details of the firefighters' requests for the coming fiscal year were not disclosed, but Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said Monday the offer was submitted Saturday in accordance with the Nov. 1 deadline agreed to by both sides.

Village officials have now received contract proposals from the firefighters and village police officers represented Friday by the Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 40.

Both groups were granted collective bargaining recognition by the village in September. Terms of the recognition call for contract negotiations to take place between Jan. 1 and April 30.

The FOP has bargained with the village in past years, although for the past two years negotiations have reached impasses.

The firefighters' union will be negotiating with the village for the first time. The union had sought recognition first from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District and later from the village when it assumed fire protection duties from the fire protection district Dec. 30.

"While we were in Korea, we were kept under constant surveillance by the Korean CIA. Our hotel room was bugged and our papers searched everytime we went out. When we met with clergy to be briefed on the condition of the Korean Church we had to meet in a private home because the missionaries' office was bugged," he said.

DESPITE THE ACTIONS of the Korean government, the Rev. Martin terms the Korean church "the most vital in the world." He said the Koreans have established a goal of 300 new churches a year for the next decade, "and they've just about made it for this year."

The Rev. Martin said he also was pleased with the cooperation among overseas churches. He said in many countries there are no Protestant or Catholic churches, only the Church of Christ.

"We work ecumenically overseas in ways we never dream of here," he said.

Hunting Ridge PTA offers preschool parents' group

Mothers no longer have to wait until their children are in school before they can become involved in PTA. Now, Hunting ridge PTA offers a preschool PTA designed for mothers of children 6 weeks to 6 years old.

Started last year by Hunting Ridge PTA's preschool committee, the group meets once a month during the school year to "encourage mothers' knowledge of child development and to prepare them for school programs," said Barbara Rygiel, chairman of the group.

Mothers take their children to the morning meetings at Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg, where babysitting service is provided. A presentation on some topic is made, such as the recent demonstration on how to help a child develop his large muscles, followed by questions and answers.

Mothers have a chance to discuss their child-rearing problems with other mothers, and children have a chance to get to know one another in the meantime, Mrs. Rygiel said.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 PTAs encouraged an outreach to mothers of preschool children several years ago after the State of Illinois mandated education of handicapped children aged 3 through 21 by public school districts, said Barbara Haystar, one of the founders of the Hunting Ridge group. Preschool committees exist in other PTAs, but Hunting Ridge chose to open up its committee to public participation.

Some 15 mothers attend monthly meetings now. Mrs. Rygiel said the group welcomes young mothers from any area.

Bus drivers renew plea for bargaining power

by MARILYN McDONALD

Bus drivers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are again asking that their association be recognized by the school board as a collective bargaining agent.

Joseph O'Brien, a spokesman for the driver group, said a registered letter requesting formal board recognition was sent to Board Pres. Walter Sundling last week. Sundling said Monday that he had received the letter and would present it to the board at its Nov. 12 meeting. He would not comment further on the request for recognition.

This is the second time this year the bus drivers have attempted to unionize. They organized into the Independent Dist. 15 School Bus Drivers' Assoc. in the spring, seeking to negotiate their 1975-76 salaries and working conditions with the board. But the board passed its own salary and benefit schedule in July, asking the drivers to deal with administrators when they have future requests.

LAST MONTH, more than half of the district's 70 drivers signed a petition saying they wanted to be represented by the Illinois Education Association, the state-wide teachers union which also backs unions of other school personnel. About 20 drivers have taken out formal membership in the new Dist. 15 IEA Bus Drivers' Assoc., O'Brien said. This new group is now seeking board recognition.

"The people who can effect changes are the board members," O'Brien said. "I'm sure there are little administrative things that Weidner (Donald Weidner, director of transportation) and Colburn (William Colburn, assistant superintendent for business services) can handle. But wage and fringe benefits must be handled by the board, and without recognition, we're powerless," he added.

Schaumburg Rd. work set

County Highway officials say Schaumburg Road widening to four lanes is definitely a 1976 project with contracts for portions of the project to be awarded in the next several weeks.

Design plans for the road are 45 per cent complete, though county officials emphasize they are still seeking right-of-way.

And, in that respect, Schaumburg officials are making every effort to cooperate. Village Mgr. John E. Coste points out Schaumburg has been "instrumental" in obtaining much of the needed right-of-way between Roselle and Meacham roads.

LAST WEEK, Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said he has received a letter from Frank M. Hines, attorney for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, advising the board of education and township school trustees have agreed to dedicate land near Schaumburg School for the widening.

Siegel said he will ask the village board to accept the land as soon as a formal plat of dedication has been received.

RESIDENTS LIVING north and south of Schaumburg Road near Salem Drive may find relief to their traffic congestion problems in the near future.

It was learned last week the village has requested the county install a traffic signal at the intersection where residents now report as much as a 10-minute wait to make left-hand turns during peak traffic hours.

SOMETIMES PEOPLE really are the funniest animals! The Schaumburg Health Dept. recently received an animal complaint filed by a resident who reported he awakened after dreaming he had been bitten by a snake and began running around the house in sleepy confusion. At that point, the man's dog, apparently frightened by the unusual exhibit, proceeded to bite his owner on both arms.

FORMER HOFFMAN Estates trustees Jim Sloan and Howard "Jack" Noble, and their wives, left the Midwest recently for a new start in the perhaps greener pastures of Arizona.

Both recently served federal prison terms in connection with roles played in the 1968 Kaufman and Broad bribery conspiracy when zoning was granted for Barrington Square.

Lake Michigan coast parley set

Members of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Area League of Women Voters are urging local residents to attend a public meeting Thursday to discuss priorities for Lake Michigan coast use.

The meeting will be at 7:45 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Members of Northwest suburban Leagues of Women Voters will serve as discussion leaders and recorders.

A slide presentation of the Illinois coast of Lake Michigan will be featured at the meeting with a brief discussion of the existing Coastal Zone Management program.

Illinois Coastal Zone Management Office staff members will present the factual portion of the program and answer questions from the audience.

All citizen suggestions and comments will be reported to the Coastal Zone Management Office.

Persons wishing to prepare for the meeting are encouraged to pick up free information packets at a Coastal Zone Management display through Thursday at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St.

Other informational meetings are scheduled in Oak Park, Libertyville and south suburban areas of Chicago.

Library to present kids' puppet show

The Schaumburg Township Public Library will present the puppet show, "Prince Charming and the Unlucky Dragon or Cinderella Revisited" during Children's Book Week Nov. 10-13.

Performances will be at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Nov. 10; 9:30, 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Nov. 11; 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Nov. 12; and 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., Nov. 13. The Nov. 11 performances will be reserved for elementary school children.

There is no charge for the performances but each person attending must pick up a free ticket in advance. Tickets will be available Saturday.

Children ages 3 and older are invited to attend. All children under 7 years old should be accompanied by an adult.

Phone reservations will not be honored but preschool teachers may pick up tickets for their classes.

The library is at 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg.

Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

Crane, Mikva see trouble for Ford

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year. "If we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced formation of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Matenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice (Continued on Sect. 3, Page 1)

Rocky's pullout from '76 race 'his idea': Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

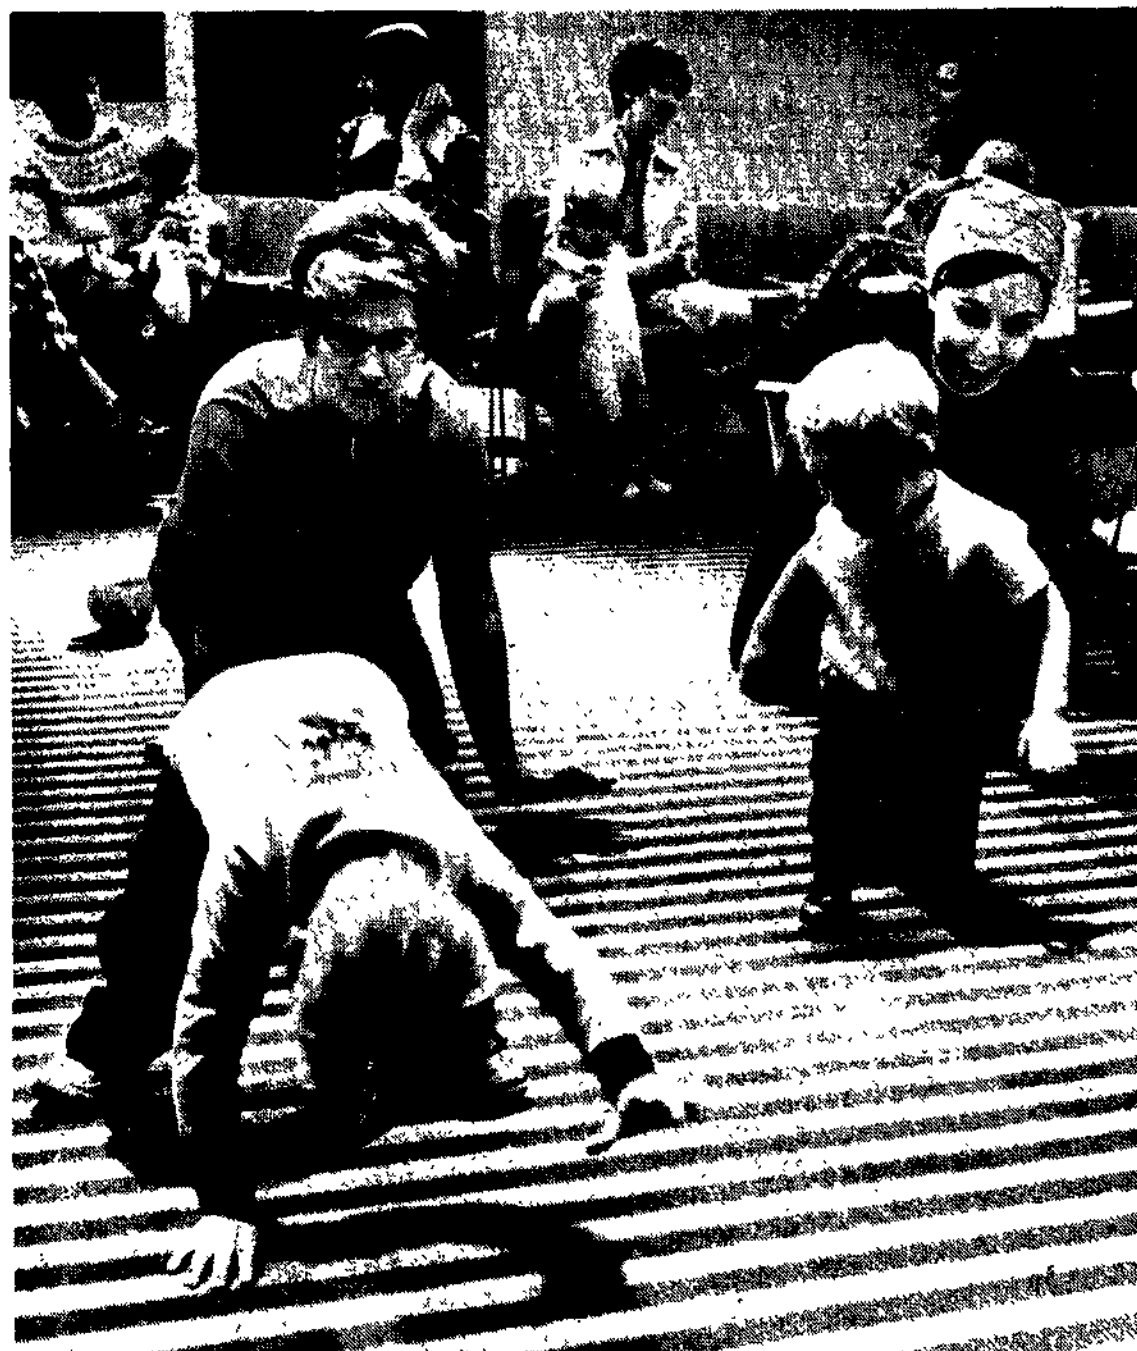

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Dist. 214 rolls decline 'not indefinite'

'No school closures until 1980'

The closing of a high school may not take place in High School Dist. 214 until 1980.

In reviewing enrollment figures showing a steady decline in students through the 1983-84 school year, the Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday it will be 1980 before enrollment will drop enough to warrant the closing of a high school.

Several board members reported that rumors are circulating in the community that the board has already decided to close a school. Supt. Edward Gilbert said the rumors are untrue.

He said the board is considering all possible solutions to the declining enrollment problem, and the board's "discussion is not based on a decision that we're going to close one or more schools."

BOARD MEMBER Donald Hoeck commented, "We're still just talking. The wrecking crane is not being ordered to any of our eight sites."

The board did review criteria that could be used to determine which school would be closed if the board decides the closing of a school is necessary. The criteria include the location of the school, physical characteristics of the building, cost factors and transportation considerations.

Enrollment is projected to drop 22 per cent in eight years from a high this year of 19,823 students to 15,460 students in 1983. Enrollment in 1980 is projected at 17,015 students. Gilbert said it is only then that Dist. 214 could house all its students in seven buildings.

The board studied school enrollment figures prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for Lake, Cook, DuPage, Kane, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana. The figures show high school enrollment reaches a peak in 1980, drops to a low in 1990 and rises again until the year 2000.

"This phenomenon of declining enrollment doesn't seem to continue indefinitely," said Gilbert, but he added the study shows there is a "10-year period where we can easily accommodate the enrollment of the district in less than eight schools."

BOARD MEMBER Arthur Aronson asked whether Harper College, with its expanding enrollment, would be interested in using Dist. 214's facilities.

Rolling Meadows an 'All-Star Library'

The Rolling Meadows Library has been named an All-Star Library by the Illinois Library Assn. (ILA).

Judith Drescher, head librarian, said the award is given to the libraries making the most progress in meeting ILA standards. The award will be presented to the library board at the December meeting of the ILA in Chicago.

Mrs. Drescher said the library received the ILA recognition because of its efforts to expand services within the community.

"THE ALL STAR Library award is given to the libraries in Illinois that have done the most to attempt to achieve ILA standards. It doesn't necessarily mean we've accomplished everything we attempted but it means we worked harder and were more systematic," she said.

In an application submitted to the ILA in August, Mrs. Drescher said she stressed "our really huge attempt to become part of the community."

"We've tried to extend our services to people not using the library — the handicapped, the homebound and those who live far away. We've also taken a leading role in achieving co-operative programs," she said.

Dist. 214 administrators questioned whether the college could use a Dist. 214 campus since parking space is limited. The college requires a large amount of parking since most of its students commute by car.

Terry Schott of Arlington Heights asked the board if it "deliberately withheld" its enrollment report until after voters approved a second campus for Harper College in a referendum Sept. 27. "Didn't you feel it was your place to contact Harper" about possible use of a Dist. 214 school as a second campus? Mrs. Schott asked.

"That would have been a little presumptuous on our part," said Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko. Gilbert said there was no connection between the enrollment report and the referendum. "It would be hard for me to conceive that that would have changed their course of action," he said.

Army releases more Nike land

by KURT BAER

The U.S. Army will surrender 26 more acres at the Arlington Heights Nike Base, Central and New Wilke roads, to the Arlington Heights Park District.

The additional land will increase the park district's holdings at the site by 40 per cent, and may allow the expansion of a nine-hole village golf course planned on the property.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., received word Monday of the Army's decision to declare 26 acres surplus to its needs.

REV. AND MRS. JAMES Martin of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, recently returned from a month-long tour of world missions for the United Presbyterian Church. Their travels included stops in Korea, Bangkok, Singapore and Japan.

Helping others is his mission

by LINDA PUNCH
The fate of millions of people overseas rests on the shoulders of the Rev. James Martin of Arlington Heights.

Rev. Martin, pastor of the first Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, was one of two ministers selected to tour the world mission stations of the United Presbyterian Church. His job was to report on the current state of the missions and to make recommendations for future funding of the program.

"For the past few years, there's been talk about a moratorium on sending people overseas so each country could develop its own resources. Now, I think there's going to be a switch," he said.

The Rev. Martin's trip took him to missions in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Singapore, Bangkok and Kenya. He is convinced the church must increase support of the missions rather than cut back.

"IN SOUTHERN INDIA, we closed a hospital that ministered to a million people because we couldn't afford a doctor. It only would have cost $3,600 a year. It's a tragic thing to see that kind of withdrawal," the Rev. Martin said.

The Rev. Martin said the number of missionaries has been cut back from 1,400 to 500 in the past 10 years because of the lack of money.

"There are people lining up to go overseas but the church doesn't have the funds," he said.

Mrs. Martin, who accompanied her husband on the trip, said lack of money also causes hardship for families of missionaries.

"THE MISSIONARIES are responsible for educating their own children through the second grade. After that, they often have to send them away to a boarding school. This is very much of a hardship on the family," she said.

The Rev. Martin said the church loses many missionaries when children reach college age.

"One of our best interpreters must come back to the United States after 27 years in order to support his children in college. It's tragic to lose that kind of expertise, but they haven't enough money to continue," he said.

The interest in Christianity continues to grow in the Southeast Asian countries despite recent waves of anti-Americanism, the Rev. Martin said. He cites South Korea, where Pres. Park Chung Hee has cracked down on clergy, as an example.

"While we were in Korea, we were kept under constant surveillance by the Korean CIA. Our hotel room was bugged and our papers searched everytime we went out. When we met with clergy to be briefed on the condition of the Korean Church we had to meet in a private home because the missionaries' office was bugged," he said.

Army releases more Nike land

preted as a compromise to demands that the Army reevaluate its decision of a year ago to hold on to 73 acres at the Nike Base for a reserve training center.

The park district already controls 65 acres of former military property in two separate parcels of 52 and 13 acres.

Information on the location of the 26 additional acres was not immediately available. If the acreage joins the two parcels already owned by the park district, it would permit the addition of more golf course holes.

Grading for the golf course could begin next spring if the village board approves financing for $3.2 million worth of flood control improvements, including the Nike Base work.

Arlington Heights Trustee Frank Palmatier has proposed the issuance of nonreferendum, general obligation bonds to pay for the construction.

THE GOLF COURSE is designed to store storm water after heavy rains and prevent flooding in the neighboring Surrey Ridge and Surrey Ridge West subdivisions.

The 26 acres declared excess by the Army Monday, still must pass through the General Services Administration, a U.S. government clearing house, before the park district can take title to the property.

But spokesmen for Crane and Stevenson said Monday they are unaware of any other claim to the property, and do not expect unreasonable delays in getting the land transferred to the park district.

The Army's decision caps a 17-month-long controversy that started in June 1974, when the Army rejected requests that it give up all of the 73 acres it retained at the base. Park officials next proposed a compromise that would have left the Army with 31 acres.

The compromise plan also was rejected in October 1974. But Army officials promised to re-evaluate their land needs in a year. The re-evaluation and continued pressure from local legislators and citizens apparently lead to the decision to give up 26 more acres.

TOM McDONNELL, a spokesman for the Citizens Committee for Utilization of the Nike Base, said Monday the Army's announcement will probably mark an end to residents' agitation over the base.

"I don't think we can press for any more. They have recognized our needs and we recognize theirs," McDonnell said.

"Speaking for the committee, we are really overjoyed. We had all the confidence that we were going to win. It only made good sense," he added.

Story workshop slated at library

The Rolling Meadows Library staff will sponsor a storytelling workshop from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday at the Rolling Meadows City Hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

The workshop is open to preschool, nursery school and elementary school teachers and other interested adults. The staff will discuss how to select stories and will introduce simple games for young children.

There is no charge for the workshop. For further information or to register, call 259-6050.

Turkey Trot set Saturday by Rotary

The Fifth Annual Turkey Trot of the Rolling Meadows Park District will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Entries will be taken for the 13 events beginning at 9 a.m. and will continue until the time of each race. There is no entry fee. Races are categorized by age and sex.

Turkeys will be awarded to all first-place winners.

Trophies will be awarded to first through third place winners and ribbons awarded to 4th through 5th place contestants. The Turkey Trot is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Rolling Meadows.

Plan panels to meet on county maps

A special meeting of the Palatine Plan Commission and the planning, building and zoning committee of the village board will be held at 8 p.m. today to review the proposed Cook County zoning maps.

The zoning maps propose revisions of current zoning in unincorporated Palatine Township, and are part of a county master plan being prepared by Rolf C. Campbell and Associates, planning consultants.

The meeting will be at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

Driver killed as auto hits truck

A 33-year-old Schaumburg man was killed Monday morning when his small foreign car went out of control, and crashed into a pickup truck at Higgins and Ash roads in Hoffman Estates.

Pat Ramesh-Reddy, 416 N. Alden Ln., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. The driver of the pickup truck, Dennis Kohn, 19, of 954 W. Babcock Dr., Palatine, was released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Sgt. Ron Sperandio of the Hoffman Estates traffic division said Ramesh-

Reddy, an accountant for Kaufman and Broad, was apparently going to work when the mishap occurred about 8:45 a.m.

Firefighters had to pry the car apart to free the body from the wreckage.

Ramesh-Reddy's Volkswagen was northbound on Aztec Street when it went out of control, struck a concrete median strip on Higgins Road and flew into the air, Sperandio said.

The car spun around, and as it was coming down struck the pickup truck, westbound on Higgins Road, police said. The truck ended up in a ditch and the car on the road shoulder.

High School Dist. 211

Orders are being taken for Palatine High School's Bicentennial musical, "Betsy," record albums. The stereo records are $5 and will be available in December. Orders may be placed with the music department.

Three Schaumburg High School band students were selected for the Illinois Music Educator's State Festival at Glenbrook South High School Saturday.

Selected were Roy Cavazos, first chair alto saxophone in the jazz band; Susan Viviano, flute in the symphonic band; and Lee Martinec, trumpet in the symphonic band.

The festival jazz band will be conducted by Roger Schuler, Milkin University, and the symphonic band will be conducted by Miles Johnson, St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.

The concert, featuring students from several surrounding suburban high schools, will begin at 3:30 p.m.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

Indian jewelry, pine cone art, leather articles and candles are just some of the 30 or more crafts to be displayed at Schaumburg School's PTA art and craft fair.

The fair will be Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the school, 520 E. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg.

High School Dist. 214

Harold Shane, former dean of the school of education at Indiana University and author of "The Educational Significance of the Future," will speak at High School Dist. 214's institute program, Friday, beginning at 9 a.m. at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd.

The institute is sponsored by Dist. 214 in cooperation with the Cook County Educational Service Region. The public is invited to attend.

At the morning program Shane will speak about the urgency and rationale for serious consideration of the future by educators. In a second address, he will develop some alternatives that teachers and administrators might consider when modifying curriculum for the future.

Ford builds 'team'; Rocky quits it

by WANDALYN RICE

The Northwest suburb's two congressmen Monday said the departure of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 vice presidential race may signal trouble in President Gerald Ford's reelection campaign.

Other political leaders, including many Illinois Republicans, took the opposite view, however, saying Rockefeller's departure will strengthen Ford against challenges from party conservatives led by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, said Rockefeller's announcement "is a very clear signal that the administration wants to move to the right to head off a threat from Reagan."

HOWEVER, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, head of Reagan's Illinois campaign organization, said he believes Rockefeller "is separating himself from President Ford" as a step toward running for president himself.

Mikva said the weekend's administration changes also mean "the presidential positions are going to be more and more geared to election day politics." He said the moves will improve Democratic chances to defeat Ford next year "if we can persuade people we will elect a President and Vice President who will run the country and not a campaign."

Crane said, however, he believes Rockefeller has decided "that the Ford candidacy is in trouble. He's putting distance between himself and Ford on the assumption that the Ford candidacy will run out of steam long before the convention."

Crane said almost two months ago, when he announced formation of Citizens for Reagan, that he expects Ford also to withdraw from the Presidential race after bad showings against Reagan in the early primaries.

Crane said, "I think the Republican nomination will come down to the California primary and that it will be Reagan against Rockefeller."

TWO LOCAL GOP committeemen said they believe Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will strengthen Ford's standing with local Republicans.

"I think it will be very helpful to Ford," Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen said. "He will be campaigning on his own name. I think a lack of clear definition of Rockefeller's position has clouded some people's position on Ford's candidacy."

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township committeeman, said "I think a lot of local Republicans will be glad he (Rockefeller) decided to withdraw. I would assume this might make it easier for President Ford."

Other Illinois Republican leaders said they believe Rockefeller's move will strengthen Ford, with several conservatives saying they believe Ford will ask Reagan to be his running mate.

David Martenson of Rockford, secretary of the GOP State Central Committee, said, "I think this will encourage Reagan to run for the vice presidency. I think everybody in this area is feeling if they had their druthers they'd like Reagan to run for vice president."

Rocky's pullout from '76 race 'his idea': Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Later, Ford told a news conference that Rockefeller's decision "was his own" and "under no circumstances was it a request by me."

Many Republican leaders said Rockefeller's unexpected announcement should strengthen Ford's hand against a presidential bid by former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

FORD DENIED that his campaign was in trouble and said he was unconcerned "about any competitors, Democrat or Republican."

He said it was premature to discuss who would be his 1976 running mate.

The President said he had been assured by Rockefeller of his support next year and denied speculation that the vice president might himself run for the GOP nomination.

Ford was asked whether he had attempted to dissuade Rockefeller from his decision in light of the President's many earlier statements that he and Rockefeller made a good political team.

"The vice president came to me and said his letter represented his decision. And I accepted it," Ford replied.

HE ALSO WAS asked whether appointment of Donald Rumsfeld as Defense Secretary and George Bush to head the CIA eliminated them from consideration as his vice presidential candidate in 1976.

"I don't think they are eliminated by anybody — delegates to the convention or by myself," the President said.

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Bratcher to draft ordinance

New marijuana law advances

by JOANN VAN WYE

The proposed decriminalization of marijuana possession within the Village of Palatine Monday passed its first hurdle with village officials and was hailed as a "more stringent way of enforcing marijuana laws."

Palatine officials directed Police Chief Jerry Bratcher to continue his research on the subject and come back to the village board with a marijuana ordinance before the end of the year.

Bratcher explained to the health, safety and welfare committee of the board and approximately 30 residents Monday that under the proposed village ordinance the penalty for possession of 30 grams of marijuana (approximately four marijuana cigarettes) or less would be changed from a possible jail sentence to a mandatory fine ranging from $100 to $500.

"I FEEL THIS would be a more stringent and viable way of enforcing marijuana laws," Bratcher said. "It's more in line with the contemporary scene."

Persons now found guilty of marijuana possession under the state statute are usually placed on court supervision which has not proved to be an effective deterrent, Bratcher said. He added that of the 102 arrests for marijuana possession in Palatine last year, not one jail sentence was imposed.

"If we fined $100 to $500 perhaps the parent would pay the fine, but still I feel it would be a better deterrent," he said.

"The consequences for smoking marijuana in Palatine or anywhere else now are zero," Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said. He added marijuana laws should be enforced so the problem doesn't get any worse.

SUZANNE HENNING of Palatine, a student at Harper College, questioned

the stiff fine proposed by the village. "Decriminalization is a very good consideration to be made but the precedent is to make the fine up to $100," Ms. Henning said.

Leanne Levchuk, a psychologist, also supported a reduction in the fine for possession.

"A $100 fine might be a bit steep," Ms. Levchuk said, adding that it could cause a deterioration of the family if the parents are forced to pay the fine. She suggested jobs be made available to juveniles fined for marijuana possession so they could pay the fine and be responsible for their own action.

Ms. Levchuk also suggested that as an alternative to the fine, juveniles found guilty of possession could be given the option of an educational course on the health and legal aspects of marijuana.

"I WOULD OPPOSE any fine under $100," Trustee Richard W. Fonte and other trustees said.

"This is a way of tightening control (on marijuana use) not a liberalization," Trustee Robert J. Guss said.

Dr. Ralph Morris, a resident of Palatine and professor of pharmacology at the University of Illinois, said his

Kissinger on top after Ford shuffle

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he fired Defense Sec. James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby because "I wanted a team that was my team," and declared Henry A. Kissinger will play a dominant role in U.S. foreign policy.

FORD CONFIRMED he was nominating White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld — who served 6½ years as Republican congressman from Chicago's Northwest suburbs — to succeed Schlesinger at the Pentagon, and Ambassador George Bush, chief of U.S. liaison office in Peking to become CIA director.

"These are my guys, and the ones I wanted," Ford said.

"I did it totally on my own. I put the pieces together and they fit excellently. It was my decision."

Ford also disclosed he was recalling Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson from London to succeed Rogers C. B. Morton as commerce secretary.

At a White House news conference following 24 hours of high-level changes in his administration — including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's abrupt announcement he would not be Ford's running mate in 1976 — the President denied that any "personal or policy differences" were involved in his decision to dismiss Schlesinger and Colby.

Throughout the half-hour meeting with reporters, the President sought vigorously to dismiss repeated speculation among Kissinger's critics in Congress that Ford had thrown his weight behind the secretary of state and against Schlesinger in a major administration power struggle over détente with the Soviet Union.

Ford conceded, however, that Kissinger would continue to "have the dominant role in formulating and carrying out" U.S. foreign policy.

Heatherlea anti-annex drive gaining

by DIANE MERMIGAS

About 15 residents of the unincorporated Heatherlea subdivision are gaining momentum in their attempt to block the annexation of their homes into the Village of Palatine.

Thomas Patten, a spokesman for the group, Monday said two petitions are being prepared by an attorney and will be circulated this week in the subdivision in an attempt to fight an ongoing annexation drive that is in its ninth week.

Heatherlea residents who signed the annexation petition will be asked to sign one of the petitions circulated by the opposition group, consenting to allow other residents to remove their names from the original petition if they desire.

MORE THAN 50 per cent of the residents who signed the original annexation petition must consent to the voluntary removal of names from that petition under state law, Patten said.

The opposition group also will circulate a second petition for Heatherlea residents to sign if they signed the original annexation petition and now

Moving pool dispute to air at parks meeting tonight

The Palatine Park Board tonight will decide if a swimming pool at the Home Avenue and Oak Street parksite will be relocated to comply with objections of nearby Palatine Township residents.

Construction of the 5-acre site was halted last week after 35 residents whose homes surround the park attended a park board meeting to protest the construction of a swimming pool and bathhouse there.

The swimming pool, which has been relocated on the site several times, is planned for the north end of the park, 23.5 feet from the nearest home.

THE PARK BOARD tonight will consider whether it can afford the expense of moving the pool and bathhouse to its original location in the center of the park. The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. at the Palatine Hills Golf Course clubhouse, 512 W. Northwest Hwy.

The project architect and contractor will give the park board estimates on moving the facilities, redrawing the plans and resuming construction.

The facility was moved from its original location on Garden Avenue, a planned county street, because the park district was unable to get the street vacated.

County Board action on vacating Garden Avenue is expected in about three weeks. The pool and bathhouse cannot be returned to the original location unless the street is vacated, according to park board officials.

THE PARK BOARD will decide tonight on altering the plans just on the basis of the costs involved, Park Comr. Thomas Patten said.

"If the park board cannot afford to move that pool another time, then it probably won't be moved and construction will resume," Patten said.

Patten was president of the now defunct Palatine Rural Park District. Tax dollars from the Rural Park District are being used to construct the $450,000 project.

Residents are threatening to file an injunction against the park district to stop the park construction if the pool and bathhouse remain in the plans.

Arthur Jaki, project architect, has estimated it will cost between $3,000 and $4,000 to resume construction of the park which began in mid-September. The park is scheduled for completion next spring.

$45,000 to raise pay to average

It would cost the Village of Palatine more than $45,000 annually to increase employee salaries to the averages paid in surrounding municipalities, according to a recent wage survey.

The survey compared the minimum, mid-point and maximum salaries of Palatine's 136 employees to the salaries offered for the same job in 10 other Chicago suburbs with populations ranging from 25,000 to 35,000.

The survey indicated that 29 of Palatine's job classifications are underpaid in comparison with other municipalities and 21 are average or above.

The village board has referred the survey to the administration, finance and legislation committee for review Nov. 17 when it considers a request for salary increases.

THE SALARY REVIEW was prompted by a request from Palatine patrolmen for a raise. The board decided to review all employee salaries.

No funds for salary increases have been budgeted into this year's budget, according to Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig. He added sales tax revenue is higher than budgeted and this money could be used in a "limited form" if the board chooses.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte, chairman of the committee, said he was thinking about next year's budget and the salary review was the first step in the budget planning. The new fiscal year starts May 1.

The survey indicated that the police lieutenants, utility servicemen, draftsmen, tree-trimmer foremen, clerk stenographer, police sergeants and mechanics were underpaid the most in comparison to other municipalities.

FOR EXAMPLE, the survey indicated that the salary mid-point for a tree-trimmer foreman in Palatine is $13,020 but the average mid-point salary for the same position in the other communities was $15,637, a difference of $2,617.

"Some of the positions are seemingly out of line," Harwig said, adding that others didn't seem to need much adjustment.

Fonte said the committee discussion on salaries would be open to the public. Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin recently walked out of an executive session on salaries, saying the closed-door meeting was not in keeping with the spirit of the law. Fonte was not present at the meeting.

Help vowed to stop double pension

Police in Palatine and 29 other Illinois communities have been promised the cooperation of a high-ranking staff member from the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee in an effort to stop double pension payments.

U.S. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Oregon, recently told a group of police officers he would assign a committee staffer to meet with them to discuss a method to halt the practice which requires some police to pay both Social Security and local pension fund contributions.

Although the policemen will collect from both funds when they retire, they object because dual payments take more than 14 per cent of their annual salary, according to Northfield Police Chief Richard D. Klatzco. The situation affects about 600 of the state's 22,000 policemen, he said.

Klatzco said police have tried for many years to get the law changed. He noted that efforts to conac U.S. Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Arkansas, the former chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, were unsuccessful.

POLICE IN Palatine, Roselle, Hanover Park and other Illinois towns are caught in the double pension payment situation because their communities formed police departments before establishing local pension programs or joining the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, which was formed in 1941.

Other government employees in Illinois have been exempted from paying Social Security taxes through a variety of amendments in federal and state law.

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has introduced legislation which would allow police caught in this situation to decide on a department-by-department basis to pick either Social Security or pension payments for their retirement funds.

Klatzco said the promise made by Ullman is more than police have been able to get from other government officials.

"I want an opportunity to get some police from these towns to Washington to talk about the problem," Klatzco said.

WHILE KLATZCO said he believes most police officers would prefer to drop the Social Security payments, Ullman cautioned against such a move.

Citing the current financial problems in New York City, the congressman suggested the future of municipal pension funds is not good and that employees might be wiser to remain in the Social Security system.

He added that there might be a way to enact a law allowing workers caught in the double payment bind to make partial payments into both retirement funds.

Bus drivers renew plea for bargaining power

Bus drivers in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are again asking that their association be recognized by the school board as a collective bargaining agent.

Joseph O'Brien, a spokesman for the driver group, said a registered letter requesting formal board recognition was sent to Board Pres. Walter Sundling last week. Sundling said Monday that he had received the letter and would present it to the board at its Nov. 12 meeting. He would not comment further on the request for recognition.

This is the second time this year the bus drivers have attempted to unionize. They organized into the independent Dist. 15 School Bus Drivers' Assoc. in the spring, seeking to negotiate their 1975-76 salaries and working conditions with the board. But the board passed its own salary and benefit schedule in July, asking the drivers to deal with administrators when they have future requests.

LAST MONTH, more than half of the district's 70 drivers signed a petition saying they wanted to be represented by the Illinois Education Association, the state-wide teachers union which also backs unions of other school personnel. About 20 drivers have taken out formal membership in the new Dist. 15 IEA Bus Drivers' Assoc., O'Brien said. This new group is now seeking board recognition.

"The people who can effect changes are the board members," O'Brien said. "I'm sure there are little administrative things that Weldner (Donald Weldner, director of transportation) and Colburn (William Colburn, assistant superintendent for business services) can handle. But wage and fringe benefits must be handled by the board, and without recognition, we're powerless," he added.

Some residents in Heatherlea fight annex would like to remove their names, Patten said.

Patten said that the "anti-annexation" petitions will be presented in court once the subdivision's annexation petition is filed with the Village of Palatine.

Then, Heatherlea residents who are opposing the annexation drive may file an injunction to keep the subdivision from becoming part of the village, he said.

ALLAN FINKELMAN, another Heatherlea resident who has coordinated the annexation petition drive there, said the petitions will be filed this week. The village already has some of the signed petitions.

Finkelman has not released copies of the petitions or the number of signatures he has obtained to members of the opposition group, Patten said.

"We'll be able to get copies of the petitions from the court once they have been filed with the village. Then we'll know who signed the original petitions and how many residents we need to get for our own petitions. Until then, we'll have to play it by ear," Patten said.

"We have six people who want their names off the original petition now I think there will be others," he said.

Plan panels to meet on county maps

A special meeting of the Palatine Plan Commission and the planning, building and zoning committee of the village board will be held at 8 p.m. today to review the proposed Cook County zoning maps.

The zoning maps propose revisions of current zoning in unincorporated Palatine Township, and are part of a county master plan being prepared by Rolf C. Campbell and Associates, planning consultants.

The meeting will be at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

State to govern flood plain building

By December of this year, construction within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and tributaries in Palatine, Schaumburg, and Elk Grove townships will be governed by the state.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation, Division of Water Resources Wednesday at a public hearing in Rolling Meadows asked interested persons to comment on a flood plain construction permit system it plans to put in effect by the end of the year.

Representatives of several local governmental bodies present reserved comment on the state's plan until they reviewed flood plain maps prepared by the state.

PALATINE Trustee Robert Guss told state officials he endorsed their efforts to control the flood plain but urged the group "to completely prohibit construction in designated flood plains." He added that Palatine has suffered extensive flooding and does not permit construction in flood plains.

"It's the only way to prevent flooding woes. When a builder is done, he leaves us with the problems to face," Guss said. "Don't give him a way to fill in flood plains; it only displaces the water," he added.

THE STATE IS asking the public review the maps that define the flood plain and to verify the accuracy of the state flood plain boundaries.

Maps are on display at the department's Schaumburg office at the

Woodfield Plaza Building, 1000 Plaza Drive

Local officials from the Salt Creek basin area and residents are asked to submit written comments to the Department of Water Resources at the same address.

Leo M. Eisel, director of the division of water resources, said Wednesday's hearing was planned to provide information to aid the department in designating the flood plain as well as setting construction regulations.

State officials say without state control of construction in flood plains, new development will soon create new flood damage potential.

THE STATE IS asking the public review the maps that define the flood plain and to verify the accuracy of the state flood plain boundaries.

2 Palatine residents among five new firemen selected

Two Palatine residents are among five new firemen who have been hired to boost the village fire department's full-time force to 19 men.

The Palatine Fire and Police Commission hired the men who were on the village's current eligibility list of firefighting candidates. The men successfully completed written and oral examinations, agility and polygraph tests, a medical exam and a background check, said Roger Mick, commission chairman.

The five men will begin work Monday at a base salary of $11,880 per year. The new firemen will receive firefighting and paramedic training during the next few months.

Max Gould Jr., 48 S. Greeley St. and Thomas Bergman, 664 N. Benton St., both of Palatine, are two of the new firemen who were hired.

The other firemen are Norman Malcolm, Melrose Park; James Eriksen, Schaumburg; and Steven Zimmerman, Woodstock.

THE COMMISSION is expected to hire seven more firemen by the early part of 1976, Mick said.

The commission conducted written and physical examinations this past weekend for other firefighting candidates. About 90 of the 230 original candidates passed the exams and will be required to pass an oral interview and background check before their names can be placed on a new eligibility list, Mick said.

The village board has agreed to hire a total of 12 additional firemen by January 1976 with $81,000 in funds that will come from a projected surplus in the 1975-76 village budget.

The funds for the new employees will not come from a 21.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation increase in fire taxes recently approved by voters. These new tax revenues, which will not be collected by the village until the 1976-77 fiscal year, will be used to hire enough firemen to boost the total firefighting force to 40.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, declining to give any explanation, told President Ford Monday he does not want to be considered as his running mate next year.

Rockefeller's announcement took the nation by surprise, although Press Secretary Ron Nesson said the vice president and Ford had discussed the matter over the past two days.

Rockefeller's letter gave no explanation for the move, and gave no hint as to the vice president's plans beyond serving out the balance of his term. He refused requests to meet with reporters.

IN FLORIDA, Reagan said he was "astounded" by the announcement and added that he felt the American people "would refuse to accept Rockefeller" as Ford's running mate.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, a long time Rockefeller backer, seemed upset by the announcement and said, "I do think we damn well better have a balanced ticket."

Rockefeller, long an anathema among conservatives in the Republican Party, has been described by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway as a "problem" on the ticket because he is disliked in the South.

Sliding water rate scale would hike bills by 20%

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect Trustee E.F. Richardson Monday called for a sliding water-rate schedule that would increase the average customer's rate 20 per cent.

Richardson's proposal would hike the rate of most customers from 75 cents to 90 cents per thousand gallons.

He offered his proposal as an alternative to a flat 40 per cent rate hike scheduled for presentation to the village board tonight. The flat hike would increase rates to $1.05 per thousand.

THE TRUSTEE said a graduated rate schedule would be fairer than a flat increase since people who use more water would be paying a higher rate.

"With the drop in our water table... the product becomes more precious as well as more expensive to provide," Richardson said. "It is therefore my recommendation that we adopt a graduated water-rate schedule whereby the users who place more of a drain on the system will pay more."

Under Richardson's proposal, the minimum charge for water service would increase from $6 to $9 per quarter. This would affect the estimated 500 customers who use less than 10,000 gallons per quarter.

Rates would start at 90 cents per thousand gallons for the estimated 8,600 customers using less than 30,000 gallons per quarter. The top rate of $1.30 would apply to an estimated 30 customers using more than 500,000 gallons per quarter.

RICHARDSON estimated the change in the rate schedule would produce an estimated $327,000 in needed village revenue each year.

Although he originally voted against proposed rate hikes, Richardson said the rate changes are now needed to make ends meet in the water department.

"The problem is quite simple," Richardson said. "Revenues from the sale of water have not kept pace with expenses due to inflation, expansion and abnormal maintenance expenses."

According to Richardson's figures, it currently costs the village 97.6 cents to produce a thousand gallons of water compared to a cost of 58 cents in 1971.

THE OBLIGATION of providing an adequate water system is the board's responsibility," Richardson said. "It is not fair to the administration nor is it in keeping with good government to continue operating the water department in a negative fashion."

With the additional revenue, Richardson said the village will be able to afford needed repairs to four wells, estimated to cost $209,000.

Richardson said that his proposed rate schedule would have to be revised in the future to solve anticipated water problems.

He said the possible purchase of Citizens Utilities Co. water and sewer lines in the New Town area would require an alteration of rates. He said rates would have to be reworked again once plans are drawn for obtaining Lake Michigan water.

'No Dist. 214 closures until 1980'

The closing of a high school may not take place in High School Dist. 214 until 1980.

In reviewing enrollment figures showing a steady decline in students through the 1983-84 school year, the Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday it will be 1980 before enrollment will drop enough to warrant the closing of a high school.

Several board members reported that rumors are circulating in the community that the board has already decided to close a school. Supt. Edward Gilbert said the rumors are untrue.

He said the board is considering all possible solutions to the declining enrollment problem, and the board's "discussion is not based on a decision that we're going to close one or more schools."

BOARD MEMBER Donald Hoeck commented, "We're still just talking. The wrecking crane is not being ordered to any of our eight sites."

The board did review criteria that could be used to determine which school would be closed if the board decides the closing of a school is necessary. The criteria include the location of the school, physical characteristics of the building, cost factors and transportation considerations.

Enrollment is projected to drop 22 per cent in eight years from a high this year of 19,823 students to 15,460 students in 1983. Enrollment in 1980 is projected at 17,015 students. Gilbert said it is only then that Dist. 214 could house all its students in seven buildings.

The board studied school enrollment figures prepared by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for Lake, Cook, DuPage, Kane, and McHenry counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana. The figures show high school enrollment reaches a peak in 1980, drops to a low in 1990 and rises again until the year 2000.

"This phenomenon of declining enrollment doesn't seem to continue indefinitely," said Gilbert, but he added the study shows there is a "10-year period where we can easily accommodate the enrollment of the district in less than eight schools."

BOARD MEMBER Arthur Aronson asked whether Harper College, with its expanding enrollment, would be interested in using Dist. 214's facilities.

Dist. 214 administrators questioned whether the college could use a Dist. 214 campus since parking space is limited. The college requires a large amount of parking since most of its students commute by car.

Kissinger on top after Ford shuffle

From Herald news services

President Ford said Monday night he fired Defense Sec. James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby because "I wanted a team that was my team," and declared Henry A. Kissinger will play a dominant role in U.S. foreign policy.

FORD CONFIRMED he was nominating White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld — who served 6½ years as Republican congressman from Chicago's Northwest suburbs — to succeed Schlesinger at the Pentagon, and Ambassador George Bush, chief of U.S. liaison office in Peking to become CIA director.

"These are my guys, and the ones I wanted," Ford said.

"I did it totally on my own. I put the pieces together and they fit excellently. It was my decision."

Ford also disclosed he was recalling Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson from London to succeed Rogers C. B. Morton as commerce secretary.

At a White House news conference following 24 hours of high-level changes in his administration — including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's abrupt announcement he would not be Ford's running mate in 1976 — the President denied that any "personal or policy differences" were involved in his decision to dismiss Schlesinger and Colby.

Throughout the half-hour meeting with reporters, the President sought vigorously to dismiss repeated speculation among Kissinger's critics in Congress that Ford had thrown his weight behind the secretary of state and against Schlesinger in a major administration power struggle over detente with the Soviet Union.

Ford conceded, however, that Kissinger would continue to "have the dominant role in formulating and carrying out" the administration's foreign policy.

Dist. 26 teachers to attend 'reduction in force' meet

A number of River Trails Dist. 26 teachers are expected to attend tonight's board of education meeting to hear discussion on a controversial policy for reducing the number of teachers in the district.

The board has proposed a "reduction in force" policy, a procedure for eliminating teachers should enrollment drop enough to warrant staff cuts. The board does not plan to adopt the policy tonight, said Board Pres. Leora Rosen, because they are waiting to hear from teachers who objected to the proposed policy at an Oct. 21 meeting.

George Chase, vice president of the teachers' union, said teachers will not make a statement concerning the policy at the meeting unless "pressured by the board to do so."

He said the teachers want a reduction-in-force clause to be included in negotiations this year and prefer to present their ideas on the policy at a closed meeting with the board.

THE BOARD MAINTAINS that such a policy is not a part of the negotiated teachers contract. "We've kind of agreed that there's no point rushing this policy to meet some artificial deadline," Mrs. Rosen said.

Teachers earlier stated a vote on the 1975-76 contract would not be taken until the policy is settled. However, Chase said Monday that teachers will vote on the tentative contract agreement Wednesday.

The proposed "reduction-in-force" policy states that all nontenured teachers would be dismissed before any tenured teachers. A teacher must have taught in the district for at least two years to be tenured.

Tenured teachers would be dismissed according to a point system. Points would be given for the number of years a teacher has worked in the district, the number of graduate credits a teacher has earned and an evaluation of the teacher's performance.

Sewer tests spot Oakton industry park polluters

Tests of sewers in the Oakton Industrial Park have found six firms that are polluting the system, Elk Grove Township officials said Monday night.

Action against the six firms, whose names were not released, is being prepared. In all six cases, excess grease had been dumped into the township's sanitary sewer system.

The township recently put terry-cloth traps into 28 inspection sewers within the industrial park, which lies on both sides of Oakton Street between Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway. Eight of the traps were sent for lab analysis.

TOWNSHIP SECRETARY Nita Stamm said six of the eight traps tested showed higher grease amounts than permitted under township ordinances. The limit is 100 milligrams per liter. She said in two instances the counts were 817 and 413 milligrams per liter.

Also tested were the acid levels in each sewer. Of the eight traps tested, all were under the 10.0 limit, but two were close to the limit, being 9.2 and 9.1.

Mrs. Stamm said further tests were being conducted at the six locations and that the Metropolitan Sanitary District is being contacted about the proper procedures the township should use against the polluters.

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said action, including any necessary legal remedies, will be taken against the polluters as soon as possible. He said the names will not be released until the firms have been notified by letter of their violations. Such letters could go out as early as next week, officials said.

"I THINK WE should grab the worst one and nab him. Hang him on his own putridness," said Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee. "We should lean and lean hard on him."

The township last August passed an ordinance empowering itself to levy fines up to $100 per day for violations. It also can bring legal action and curtail sewer services. The ordinance was passed so that the township would not have to rely on the MSD for enforcement.

Through discoloration of the terry-cloth traps or the presence of pollution odors picked up by the cloths, township officials have a quick indication of a pollution violation.

In a related matter, the MSD has said it is satisfied with sewer repair work in the Higgins Industrial Park and a previous violation notice against the township will not be pursued. Inspections for illegal connections into the sanitary sewer system will follow, as required by a current MSD program.

Librarian to exhibit photo collection

Subjects range from portraits to animal photographs. Friedman is a graduate of Michigan State University and joined the library staff in September.

Orders are being taken for Texas ruby red grapefruit and oranges by the Conant Band Parents Club of Conant High School, Hoffman Estates. Orders must be in before Nov. 11 and will be ready for delivery Dec. 16. The fruit is selling for $5 per case and orders may be placed with any band member or by calling 885-9029. Proceeds from the fund-raising project will be used for future band trips.

The Conant High School Cougar marching band took first place trophy for over-all performance at the Columbus Day parade in Chicago recently.

GOODIES ON THE gingerbread house are eyed by Marie Halverson, Missy Wagner and Kim Koski of the Prospect Heights Nursery School. Mothers will sponsor a bazaar of Christmas items and baked goods Thursday to raise funds for school programs.

1973 survey not implemented

Dist. 59 OKs unit district study

A resolution to reopen the study of a unit school district for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 was unanimously approved by the Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night.

Board member Emil Bahnmaier proposed that a unit district study committee drawn from all members of the community be reestablished. A study on the unit district was done in 1973, but it was decided not to implement the concept.

A unit district would have one administration and board of education governing the elementary and high school. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten to eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

BAHNMAIER SAID there was "definite interest" in the unit district on the part of the community and that the board would remiss in its duty if it did not reopen the study.

"I think the entire study should be reviewed," he said. "The financial picture has changed quite a bit as has the population of the district. The educational impact should also be reviewed."

District resident Joseph Stecker, Mount Prospect, suggested the committee should determine how a unit district would be affected if Dist. 59 had to close some school due to lack of enrollment. Board Pres. Judith Zanca said it was "premature" to consider closing schools. She said a school's enrollment would have to drop to less than 150 students to consider closing it. The smallest school enrollment in the district is about 240.

BAHNMAIER SAID High School

Dist. 214, which will likely close one or two high schools in the next 10 years, will probably oppose the unit district because part of its tax base would be removed.

He said, however, that the economic impact on Dist. 214 would not be as severe as in 1973 now that the state formula used to figure school aid, is in effect.

Board member Erwin Poklacki urged the board to approve the establishment of the committee so "the citizenry can study the unit district independently and come to their own conclusions."

The school board also will discuss and possibly act on policies governing field trips and procedures for pupils leaving the district.

THE FIELD TRIP policy asks that schools cover the full cost of any field trip they schedule for their students "regardless of exceptionality."

Mrs. Rosen said she expects some changes will be made in the policy tonight. If changes are made, final approval of the policy will be delayed until the next board meeting, she said.

The other policy being considered asks parents of children transferring from Dist. 26 to fill out a questionnaire stating the reasons for the transfer. No changes have been submitted to the board on this policy.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Library adds '76 calendar of events

The Mount Prospect Public Library has added "The Comprehensive Calendar of Bicentennial Events" to its collection, detailing Bicentennial activities throughout the United States. The book lists events by state and by dates.

The library also has a copy of the "Spirit of '76," a calendar by the People's Bicentennial Commission listing events on a day-by-day basis 200 years ago.

Businessmen back unit district plan

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township businessmen overwhelmingly support a unit school district study for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area.

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce polled its members to see if they would support formation of a unit district. The results of the poll were released Monday with 160 members voting for and eight against a unit district. About 25 per cent of the association's members answered the petition.

A unit school district would have one administration and school board governing elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 currently serves kindergarten through eighth grade and is one of seven elementary school districts in the High School Dist. 214 attendance area.

E. STANLEY KLYBER, executive vice president of the association, said the association "will try to work with a community group to develop the procedures for applying for a unit school district. We'll try to form not only a businessmen's committee but also a citizens' committee."

He said the association will discuss the results of the poll at its Nov. 25 meeting and will decide what actions to take at that time.

The ballot distributed to the members included a petition supporting a unit district. The petition was put together by the association's investigation committee headed by Timothy Frisby, a director of the association.

The committee, which included businessmen and residents of Dist. 59, reviewed the 1973 unit district study conducted by Dist. 59 and met with Dist. 59 board members and administrators during the summer.

Blood drive today; area donors sought

Donors are needed for the Mount Prospect community blood plan drive which will run from 4 to 8 p.m. today.

Persons interested in donating can make an appointment by calling 439-439-9727 or by going to the V.F.W. Post 1337, 601 N. Main St., during the hours of the drawing.

The village's annual goal is 1,800 pints. If reached, all Mount Prospect residents and their immediate families are assured of blood when needed. If the annual goal is not met, the village can use only the amount of blood already donated.

Volunteer chairman Norma Murauskis said a total of 14 groups currently are helping the village, including St. Raymond's parish.
